Strikes, Hours, Pay.
Torture, Ancient Custom.
Watch Elbow and Thumb.
A Yom Kippur Hope.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

In Pittsburgh, 3000 to 5000 miners, singing as they go, request Carnegie Steel workers to join a "holiday movement" with 55,000 other steel and mine workers in three states.

Carlyle said:

But a crowd of 5000 that sings as it strikes puzzles those trying to re-establish American industry. A strike seems hardly a thing to singe about at the moment.

Automobile workmen on strike in New Jersey demand better working conditions, five-day week, seven-hour day, minimum pay of five dollars for seven hours, to include all unskilled labor, with higher pay for skilled labor.

William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, believes Congress should include a 5-day, 30-hour week in the recovery code. Six hours a day for five days should allow reasonable leisure. Mr. Green tells the metal trades of the American Federation of Labor that "recovery in employment is slow." It might be slower.

An important point is sometimes overlooked, namely, that in planning hours and wages you must also plan for somebody to pay the wages.

President Sacasa, of Nicaragua, forbids hereafter torture of political prisoners, to make them confess sedition.

Some in this country that will shudder at the thought of torturing helpless prisoners might be enlightened if they could look into some police stations and prison cells.

LAWLER OUSTED JUST AS HE FORECAST

A prophet is without honor in his own country and in this particular instance is without a job, Asst. Corp. Counsel Henry E. Lawler learned today.

Lawler's prediction that he would be "fired" for endorsing the mayoralty candidacy of Frederick W. Mansfield came true when Corp. Counsel Samuel Silverman removed him.

In a letter to Lawler, copies of which were give nto the press, Silverman who had publicly declared he would not "martyrize" his assistant by removing him, said his action was taken for failure to co-operate and not for political reasons.

APPROVED BY MAYOR

The letter bears the rubber stamp signature of Mayor Curley with the words "Approved Sept. 30, 1933."

Lawler was appointed assistant corporation counsel two years ago a ta salary of $6000 by Mayor Curley, whose loyal supporter he had been for many years.

His indorsement of thec andidacy of Mansfield came as a surprise, for the candidate is now one of Mayor Curley's most bitter critics. When he issued his statement last Sunday, Lawler predicted he would lose his job, but the following Wednesday Silverman denied he would discharge him. The corporation counsel then called his assitant 'Hitler Lawler' 'and accused him of writing a pro-HTitler leter, alleged photostatic copies of which he produced. Again he said he would not make a martyr of Lawler by removing him.

SILVERMAN LETTER

Then came today's letter in which Silverman wrote:

"It is quite apparent to me, in view of your conduct ofthe last few days, that it is for the best interests not only of this department but for the city as a whole, that your relationship with the law department be immediately severed.

"Your failure and refusal to co-operate with me as the head of this department have satisfied me that your continued association with the department will be destructive of the morale of its members.

"I accordingly remove you from the position of assistant corporation counsel, effective forthwith.

"This action on my part, I assure you, is not prompted by any political consideration, as I have not concerned myself with the political endeavors of any candidate.

"There is involved in your removal only the necessity of a full co-operation by the members of the law department with its head."

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE AND BABY KIDNAPED

Chicago, Sept. 30 (INS)—Mrs. Thelma Cox, 27-year-old wife of George M. Cox, wealthy 55-year-old ship owner, and their two-year-old son are being held by kidnapers, it was revealed today. Cox has offered a reward of $25,000 for their return.

The young matron and her child were kidnaped Wednesday, police were told, and Cox said he believed that some of the former crew of one of his lake boats perforqued the kidnaping.

Cox, seriously ill at his home in New Orleans, revealed over the telephone that his wife and child had been in Chicago Wednesday and that they had dropped out of sight that day. He said Mrs. Cox had about $9000 in cash and $10,000 worth of jewelry in her possession. She drew the money from their bank account in a New Orleans bank a week ago yesterday.

Cox named the men he believed responsible for the kidnaping and police began a search for them.

ACCUSES SHIP CREW

All the men he named are former members of the crew of the lake passenger steamer Isle Royale which has been involved in a suit in federal court. Members of the crew contend they have $14,000 in wages coming to them.

"I have no other enemies in the world," Cox said, "I am con-

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 30 (INS)—President Roosevelt turned his attention to social affairs today, and prepared to attend the wedding of Miss Alida Robinson, daughter of his friend Theodore Robinson.

Miss Robinson will be married to Kenneth Walker in St. James' Episcopal church here, this afternoon, and the President promised her father some time ago he would be here for the wedding.

Tonight the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be informal hosts to newspaper correspondents at a garden party on the grounds of their estate.

Dollar Weaker on London Exchange

London, Sept. 30—The American dollar opened weaker at $4.75¼ to the pound today, compared to yesterday's close at $4.73⅛.

The French franc, however, opened slightly stronger at 79.31 to the pound and improved in early trading to 79.28. Its final rate Friday was 79.53.

13 FOUND GUILTY IN 2 KIDNAP GANGS

Face Life Terms in the First Test of the Lindbergh Low

The U. S. Government today dealt two smashing blows at kidnapers who have been ruling a reign of terror throughout the country during the past two years. Thirteen, including two women, were convicted.

In Oklahoma City a jury found Albert L. Bates, Harvey Bailey, two of the most notorious desperadoes of the Southwest, and five other defendants guilty of the kidnaping of Charles Urschel, wealthy Oklahoma City oil man. Therefore life terms under the Lidnbergh law.

In Edwardsville, Ill., today another jury found six persons accused of the kidnaping of August Luer, wealthy banker, guilty. Those convicted were Mrs. Lillian Chessen, 50, her husband, Charles Chessen; Christ Nicola Critcho, Percy M. Fitzgerald, Randol Norvell and Mike Musiala, 77.

In both cases the federal government exerted all its force to trap, arrest and convict the kidnapers.

Woman, 6 Others Convicted in Urschel Plot

Oklahoma City, Sept. 30 (AP)—Harvey Bailey, Albert Bates, the three Shannons and two of the Twin Cities defendants were convicted today by a Federal court jury of the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping.

Isadore Blumenfeld, Sam Kronick and Sam Kozberg, three of the Minneapolis and St. Paul defendants, were acquitted.

The other Twin Cities defendants, Barney Berman and Clifford Skelly, were convicted.

The verdict was read immediately after Judge Edgar S. Vaught convened court.

The jurors deliberated less than two and one half hours.

Judge Vaught immediately announced he would grant three days for motions for retrials for those convicted, congratulated the jury on "your courageous discharge of your duty," and allowed the jurors to depart.

SLIGHT EMOTION

Brockton Strike Decision Next Week

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Chairman Wagner of the National Labor Board announced today a decision in the Brockton shoe strike would be made next week.

Law Lands Hard On 'Two Bad Men'

Albert L. Bates, long a companion of George (Machine Gun) Kelly, was also found guilty in the famous Oklahoma City kidnaping case. Witnesses at the trial said Bates kidnaped Urschel at the point of a machine gun.

Harvey J. Bailey, well-known desperado, was convicted as one of the seven kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel, millionaire oil magnate. The convictions were the first under the "Lindbergh kidnaping law," which provides life imprisonment.

Axes to Swing Tonight on City Night 'Clubs'

Threats of flying police axes and sledges brought naught but open defiance today from Boston speakeasies and a forecast of one of the most exciting nights in the history of the "noble experiment."

With the charters of three more Boston clubs revoked and no less than 15 young students of a Back Bay girls' school found in a raid, the police threats came from Supt. Martin H. King, whose dream it is to close all liquor places before the actuality of repeal.

WAR TO THE FINISH

Desperate for business, however, and incensed at the frequent raids on small places, the liquor sellers today declared a war to the finish, although the finish might be theirs.

"Level to the ground," was the order of the police head when he sent his strong-arm squad out in the latest of drives.

"Why don't they hit the big places once in a while," was the wail of the much-raided smaller fry.

"Let them break up what they want. We'll still do business," was one of their added thoughts.

The three revoked charters, none of which have yet been turned into State Secretary Frederic W. Cook, were ordered picked up by the raiders in the event that they should be found on the wall of any raided place.

REVOCATION ASKED

They bear the names of the Armory Athletic & Social Club of Massachusetts ave., Back Bay, the Monarch Club, Inc., in Stuart st., and the Guiseppe Mazzini Club of Boston, formerly operated in North Margin st., North End.

All were ordered revoked because of changes in address that were not approved by the police commissioner in accordance with the club law.

The Armory Club moved from Irvington st., Back Bay, to Massachusetts ave., the Monarch Club moved from Union Park st., South End, to Stuart st., Back Bay, and the Mazzini Club moved to an ad-

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 30 (INS)—Primary responsibility for the train wreck on Sept. 5 which took a toll of 14 lives, today was laid on the Erie Railroad in a coroner's verdict handed up after a prolongued inquest.

Veterans to Demand Four-Point Program

Chicago, Sept. 30 (INS)—World War veterans by the thousands were arriving in Chicago today for the American Legion national convention which opens here Monday.

Resolutions passed by three state departments asking the removal of Brig.-Gen. Frank Hines as administrator o fveterans' affairs will come before the rehabilitation committee Monday.

Watson B. Miller, chairman of the committee, and John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the legislative committee, outlined a four point plan which they said would in all probability constitute the Legion's policy on relief. The four points are:

1. That no war veteran disabled in the line of duty shall suffer any reduction of benefits granted such veterans under the World War veterans' act prior to March 20, 1933.

2. That hospitalization under government auspices be afforded all war veterans, not dishonorably discharged, who require hospital treatment and who are not able to pay for it.

3. That perpetuation of service connection for all veterans under laws in existence prior to March 20, 1933, be recommended as an item of legion policy.

4. That the benefits provided for dependents of veterans as established i nthe World War veterans' act be resumed and maintained as the government's policy.

CUBA FEARS NEW RIOTING TODAY AS YOUTH IS BURIED

President Says the Extremists "Sniped" to Force U. S. Action

Havana, Sept. 30 (INS)—Political extremists, bent on forcing American intervention in Cuban affairs, were blamed by President Ramon Grau San Martin today for yesterday's bloody riots which took a toll of six dead and 20, including an American Newsreel photographer, wounded during the Communist demonstration for Julio Mella, a student who was slain in Mexico.

In a formal statement issued

Through the night shots were heard intermittently, automobiles rushed through the city, and soldiers remained on guard. Feeling between troopers and Communists continued at high pitch.

Many feared a new outbreak as the ashes of Mella apparently were in the hands of the soldiers, who planned to bury them in Colon cemetery today.

As dusk fell the city had the appearance of a battleground, with an airplane flying overhead, cavalry, infantry, and navy patrols everywhere and an improvised tank lumbering about.

after comparative peace returned to Havana, the chief executive absolved the Cuban military from all blame. He laid the disorders at the door of sharp-shooters and snipers who turned a Communist demonstration into a wild shooting affray.

U. S. CAMERAMAN SHOT

Joseph Gibson, the American cameraman, who was shot in both legs during the riot, was wounded by a sniper from a roof overlooking the scene of the disorders, the president said. Examination definitely showed his wounds were received from shotgun slugs and not army bullets, the statement declared.

The rioting, according to President Grau San Martin, started when extremists deliberately attempting to force intervention, fired from rooftops during a Communist demonstration in behalf of Jose Mella, student Red leader, allegedly slain by Machado agents in Mexico in 1930.

The government, the presidential statement declared, sanctioned the demonstration but refused requested permission to bury the ashes of the slain student in Fraternity Park.

QUIET RESTORED

Gibson, taken to the Anglo-American Hospital, was improving this morning. Condition of some of the other wounded was less favorable.

U. S. Attitude in Cuba Unchanged by Riots

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Secretary Hull said today the tragic clash between troops and Communists in Havana last night and the wounding of an American news photographer had not changed this government's policy toward Cuba, which is one of extreme reluctance to intervene.

MANY RUSH TO PAY TAXES

The annual eleventh-hour tax rush began at city hall this morning. More than 500 persons were in line when City Treasurer William McMorrow's collectors opened their wickets, and as the day went on the crowd grew.

Taxes must be paid before midnight Monday to escape the assessment of interest at 6 per cent, retroactive to Sept. 16, the day on which the bills went out.

McMorrow estimated his office would take in between two and three millions of dollars today, while he expected Monday's figure to be approximately $15,000,000.

The office will remain open until midnight, Monday, he announced, to accommodate all those who want to "slip in under the wire."

Boston's tax warrant this year amounts to $58,384,000, of which $7,408,070 had been collected by last night. That figure was $926,000 ahead of the amount for the same day last year. Approximately 50 per cent of the warrant will have been paid before the interest charge goes into effect. This, McMorrow said, is about normal.

Young Driver Guilty of Ellsworth Death

Ellsworth, Me., Sept. 30—Sherwood A. Jellison was at liberty under bail today awaiting sentence for involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of Monree Dorr here last August 31 in an auto accident. The youth was found guilty by a jury in Hancock superior court here yesterday.

Manacled Dutch 'Red' -:- Admits Setting Reich Fire

Marinus van der Lubbe, alleged Dutch Communist, on trial as the ringleader of a group that fired the German Reichstag building, startled the court at Leipzig, Germany, by his confession that he had set the blaze. Van der Lubbe, heavily manacled, stood, stoop shouldered and with downcast eyes behind the jurists as he gave his sensational testimony. Presiding Judge Buenger questioned the defendant for approximately twenty minutes. (International News Photos.)

2 Kidnap Gangs Are Convicted; Desperados Face Life in Prison

Berman and Skelly looked dumbfounded. They had been confident they would be freed.

Their attorney, J. B. Dudley of Oklahoma City, immediately announced he would seek a new trial.

John Lowe, gray-haired bailiff who had been in charge of the jury during its two weeks' tour of duty, took the sealed envelope to the clerk. Then Filson, as soon as the judge had asked the usual questions about the verdict.

LAW'S FIRST TEST

Judge Vaught opened the flap, drew out the paper and glanced at it casually before handing it back to the clerk to be read.

The trial was the first test of the new federal kidnaping law, enacted largely as a result of the tragic Lindbergh baby abduction.

The federal government had two of its key men in its war on crime here for the trial—Assistant U. S. Attorney-General Joseph B. Keenan and Harold Nathan, assistant director of the Bureau of Investigation.

Keenan had expected to leave last night for Washington but delayed his departure when it became apparent the jury had reached a verdict.

The end of the trial brought no change in the status of the "deal" between Bates and the government for return of Bates' share of the ransom loot, supposed to have been $75,000. Bates has offered to tell federal agents the hiding place of the money if he would not be prosecuted on state charges of robbery with firearms, for which the penalty is death.

WOMAN IS CALM

Harvey Bailey's thin lips were a straight line as he compressed them tightly while the verdict was read.

Bates lost his jaunty air.

The Shannons, father, wife and son, showed no emotion.

The gray-haired Kronick's face lighted and a smile played over his features when he learned he was free. He and his cousin, Sam Kozberg, who had been leniently dealt with by the judge in his charge to the jury and by Dist. Atty. Herbert K. Hyde in his closing demand for conviction of all, had spent nearly the whole night with a local Jewish rabbi, praying.

Hyde, who had spent weary weeks with federal agents building the case from Urschel's story and from their reasoning out of the circumstances, was delighted with the jury's decision.

BLOW AT KIDNAPING

"It is a real blow at kidnaping, and I believe this verdict alone will justify the labor Congress put into enactment of an adequate law to stamp out this damnable traffic in human emotions," he said.

Keenan, who prosecuted declared:

"This is just the first skirmish. We are going right down the line and every criminal and gangster in the United States may well begin shaking in his boots. This law is a powerful weapon and we are prepared and eager to wield it to the finish."

VICTIM IS BLINDFOLDED

Two machine gunners, whom he identified as George Kelly and Albert Bates, prodded Urschel from a sun porch bridge game at his sumptuous town house here the night of July 22. They kidnaped Walter Jarrett, another oil operator who was playing bridge with Urschel, Mrs. Urschel and Mrs. Jarrett, but robbed and freed him within an hour.

Urschel, trial testimony disclosed, was taken in the kidnapers' auto to the farm of R. G. (Boss) Shannon near Paradise, Tex., where he was hidden, shackled and blindfolded for more than a week.

After negotiations, E. E. Kirkpatrick, Tulsa manager for the millionaire, handed a satchel containing $200,000 in $20 bills to Kelly on a Kansas City boulevard.

He told his whole story to federal agents, ignoring the kidnapers' warnings to remain silent. With painstaking regard for detail, the officers identified an airliner which Urschel heard roar above his farmhouse prison at regular intervals, narrowed the search to the Paradise area and, on Aug. 12, made a dawn raid on the Shannon home.

In the yard they found Harvey Bailey, leader of the Memorial Day break of 11 convicts from the Kansas State prison, asleep, a machine gun by his side and ransom bills in his clothing.

MORE OF RANSOM FOUND

Taken in Denver two days later Bates, too, had a roll of the telltale Federal Reserve notes.

More of the ransom was traced to St. Paul and Minneapolis, and seven men were arrested as alleged "money changers." Two of them were freed for lack of evidence.

The other five were tried in a tower courtroom surrounded by machine guns and guards with Bailey, Bates, Shannon, his w[illegible] and his 21-year-old son, Arm[illegible] federal charges of consp[illegible] kidnap. URSCHEL DEFIES THREATS.

The 12-year-old Geraldine Arnold, whom the Kellys carried with them as a "blind" to escape capture, told officers of their hiding place when the fugitive couple allowed her to return to her father in Oklahoma City.

The next day federal operatives dug up more than $73,000 in ransom money where Kelly had buried it on a farm near Coleman, Tex.

Urschel, big, bluff millionaire in his 40's, was the star witness. He told the story of his nine-day captivity in calm tones, stuck an accusing finger under the nose of Bates and defied Kelly's fingerprinted threats of "slaughter" for himself and his family.

3 in Lure Case Get Life; Three Others Guilty

Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP)—Prison terms ranging from life to five years were assessed here today by a jury trying five men and a woman for the kidnaping of August Luer, Alton, Ill., banker. Eugene Norvell, 33; Percy Michael Fitzgerald, 40, and Mrs. Lillian Chessen, 30, were given life sentences. (Other sentences: Mike Musiala, 45, 20 years; Chris. Nicola Glitcho, 56, five years; Charles Chessen, 37, five years.

The state had demanded the death penalty for the kidnaping of the 77-year-old banker and meat packer, who was dragged from his home the night of July 10 and held for five days before he was released after an unsuccessful effort to collect $100,000 ransom.

REED BATTLES DISBARMENT

Byron W. Reed, of Belmont, an attorney with offices at 84 State st., today charged that the grievance committee of the bar association never gave him a chance to disprove charges made against him before it carried the matter to the courts.

Reed's statement was made in Supreme court today as he answered the Boston Bar Association's disbarment proceedings against him. The association accused him of converting $175, given to him by a client for a specific purpose, to his own uses, as well as with deceit, gross misconduct and malpractice.

Reed asserts that the conversion charge is based on a misunderstanding of the case. He goes on to say that Joseph G. Ray, late president of the Ray Cotton Co., "was the best client a lawyer ever had," but that Bessie Kent Ray, his second wife and former stenographer, is "a strangely and unnaturally ungrateful client," and "extremely niggardly" about paying fees.

Following conferences with representatives of the bar association Reed said, he thought that there would be no prosecution, and was greatly surprised to learn through the newspapers—that charges had been preferred against him. He said this never could have been done if the association had thoroughly investigated the matter.

Book Review Course Sponsored by Women

Beginning October 27 and continuing on alternate Fridays a second series of four book reviews sponsored by the Sisterhood of Temple Ohabei Shalom, Beacon st., Brookline, will be given by Mrs. Miriam Skirball. There will be an announcement of the books to be reviewed on October 3 at the meeting of the sisterhood. Mrs. Arthur A. Cohen is chairman of the committee for the course.

Fore River Doubles Employment Roll

Employment since March jumped from 900 to 1533 at the Fore River plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation and a steady and substantial increase in the next 18 months is expected, General Manager Harry E. SOVIET AIRMEN REACH RECORD ALTITUDE

Report They Soared to 11.80 Miles, Beating Mark of Piccard

Moscow, Sept. 30 (AP)—Less than four hours after taking off in an army balloon for a flight into the stratosphere, three Russian air service veterans came down today and claimed they had flown higher than man has ever gone before.

They said they ascended 19,000 meters or 11.80 miles. If their instruments were correct, the record of 16,700 meters set by Professor Auguste Piccard in August, 1932, was surpassed by 2300 meters or 7544 feet. Piccard stayed aloft 12 hours.

The balloonists, Georgi Prokofiev, Ernest Birnbaum and Konstantin Gudenoff, had made eight previous attempts to get their craft off the ground, but today, thanks to perfect weather, they had easy sailing.

Five messages sent while they were soaring aloft told of their rapid progress upward. About two hours and 19 minutes after they took off they wirelessed they had bettered the Swiss scientist's altitude and were still rising.

They had then drifted only 24 kilometers from the straight line upward, they reported, and said the equilibrium of their craft was good. They did not complain of the cold, although at that great height the temperature inside their gondola was 22 degrees below zero, centigrade, and the outside temperature was 65 degrees centigrade below.

Domestic Target Wants Divorce

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 30 (US)—For 23 years John Edward Funk endured the following persecutions at the hands of his wife, Mary, he said in his divorce complaint filed here:

Attempts to cut his throat, poison him and wound him by throwing carving knives, chairs, an iron, pots, pans, forks and a pair of scissors at him.

SHERIFF FREED BY CONVICTS

Valparaiso, Ind., Sept. 30 (AP)—Ill from lack of food, but otherwise unharmed, Sheriff Charles Neel of Corydon, Ind., was safe today after having been subjected to three days' hardship as a captive in the hands of four escaped convicts, who were believed for a while to have put him to death.

Liberated near Hobart, Ind., early yesterday, the sheriff, accompanied by James Clark, one of his abductors, who later was captured, made his way to Gary, where he was found by Capt. Matt Leach, head of the Indiana state police.

Capt. Leach charged in a statement that the sheriff's long delay in notifying the authorities of his release was "apparently a neglect of duty," but the sheriff protested that he had been afraid the convicts would kill him.

Free Pork for State's Poor "Refused" by Ely

For lack of Gov. Ely's signature on a formal application, a federal government present of 2,370,000 pounds of dressed pork for needy Massachusetts families could not be shipped today.

The novel situation, of which the governor said he "had knowledge of it but nothing to say for publication," was revealed by Washington directors of President Roosevelt's program of federal relief.

A form by which the governor would formally request allocation of $71,000 in federal funds for shipment of the huge lot was sent to him some time ago but has not been returned, the office of the Federal Relief Administration informed Congressman John W. McCormack.

Asked about the delay by newspapermen, the governor waxed wroth and replied:

If and when the governor acts, the Massachusetts allotment will be shipped in 79 carloads, 20 on December 1, 24 on January 1, 20 on February 1 and 15 on March 1.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE AND BABY KIDNAPED

fident these men would try to harm me and they chose the best way."

Police have arrested William Davis, 27, who they say was heard discussing the kidnaping over the telephone.

Cox said that he had offered $25,000 reward last night for the safe return of his wife and child. He had had one telephone call from a man in Chicago who had promised to return them.

PHONE CALL TRACED

Cox said the phone call came from a man who gave his name as George Wentz, a former bartender aboard the Isle Royale.

While search was pressed for ringleaders named by Cox, police questioned Davis and also Theodore and Rudolph Oudshoff, owners of a gasoline filling station here.

Police said the phone call to Cox had been made from the public telephone in Oudshoff's filling station.

Davis said he knew nothing of the case, and denied he had made the phone call to New Orleans.

HARD LUCK IN SHIPPING

Cox recently concluded his first year of operation of a passenger line operating from Chicago to Duluth. He got away to a bad start when one of the two ships, the George M. Cox, foundered in Lake Superior last May.

Recently while the other boat, the Isle Royale, was tied up here a number of sailors had it held on a charge of non-payment of wages. Cox was aboard ill in his stateroom. Police were called to quell a disturbance caused by members of the crew.

The difficulties were settled and the boat proceeded to winter quarters at Manistee, Mich.

HOME DESERTED

Cox, a former malt dealer, returned to New Orleans this week after a five weeks' vacation in Cooperstown, Ill., and found his home the deserted. A watchman at the same reported that Mrs. Cox, her son and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Goertz, had driven away from the residence on Lake Pontchartrain late last Saturday after making plans to spend a weekend on the Mississippi coast. They did not return and could not be located on the coast.

Friends sought to convince Cox that his family had merely gone on a vacation of their own to some undisclosed spot, but he enlisted police aid in a search for them two days ago and yesterday announced the $25,000 reward for their safe return.

Mrs. Cox is his second wife and his former secretary. They were married in 1930 when he and his first wife were divorced.

Phone Caller Says "Family Well, Happy"

New Orleans, Sept. 30 (AP)—George M. Cox, New Orleans and Chicago shipbuilder, whose wife, son and parents-in-law, have been missing from their home here since last Saturday night, said today a man had phoned from Chicago last night asking if his $25,000 reward offer for the safe return of his family was authentic.

The caller said the family was "well and happy."

Cox said the man who phoned said he was George Wentz whom the shipbuilder described as an acquaintance of long standing, a former actor and showman of New Orleans and Chicago.

The phone call was put through to the Cox home here at 11:30 p. m. after Cox had retired and the caller talked to a night watchman at the residence.

"He asked if my $25,000 offer for the safe return of my family was authentic," Cox said today. The watchman said he did not know anything about the case but succeeded in holding the man on the phone for about 15 minutes while the call could be traced over another telephone. He told the watchman that my family were all well and happy but declined to give any other information until the $25,000 reward was paid."

"Have you communicated with Wentz since?" Cox was asked.

"No, I don't know how to reach him," Cox said.

TROOPERS RUSH TO CRANBERRY BOGS; RACE RIOT FEARED

STRIKERS SEEK JOBS, BUT ARE TURNED AWAY

Threatening Gestures by Bravas Alarm Wareham

Wareham, Sept. 30—Fear of race riots hung over the cranberry bogs here today as 1500 striking Bravas sought their jobs back and were rejected in large numbers by growers who have become satisfied with the work of strikebreakers.

At many of the bogs a wave of grumbling surged through the ranks of the Bravas. Hurry calls were sent to Wareham barracks of the state police and 40 troopers were assigned.

The disgruntled strikers were kept on the move but not until many had made threatening gestures at those who had replaced them in the bogs.

LEADERS ARRESTED

The back-to- move was believed to have developed overnight when the strikers lost all confidence because the second arrest in a few weeks of their leaders, Daniel J. McIntosh of Boston and Fred Wood of L[illegible].

Already on bail after they had appealed sentences of two months each for obtaining money under false pretenses, McIntosh and Wood were arrested in the "Jungletown" section of Onset on a charge of using part of the American House for a public assembly without a permit. They were addressing several hundred strikers.

OFFICIALS DISMAYED

Coupled with fines recently imposed upon nearly 100 strikers, the arrests seemed to be the "last straw" to the berry pickers and the trek to the bogs started early today.

A few were accepted by the growers but most of those who went on strike were turned away. It was then that the troopers were hurried into the district in squad cars and motorcycles.

Town officials looked with dismay on the turndown of the strikers, apparently mindful that most of them will have to be aided by the town.

DAD OF 'CHINESE BABY' IS LOSER

Harry Salloway, of the West End, must continue to contribute to the support of the child, born to Anna Bobnis, formerly of Strong pl., West End, in December, 1930. The jury verdict adjudging him in 1931 as the baby's father has been upheld by Judge George Hayes.

Salloway had moved for a new trial and the case came up yesterday before Judge Hayes in Suffolk Superior Court. The court refused to grant the new trial stating there was no credible evidence introduced to warrant the upsetting of the jury's verdict.

Salloway claimed the father of the child was one Frank Lee, Boston Chinese. His counsel argued the child was Oriental in appearance and doctors had sustained the claim.

Jews to Seek Fund for German Exiles

Workers of the Boston Palestine Labor Committee will canvass Jewish homes in Greater Boston tomorrow to inaugurate the campaign to raise $25,000 for the colony being established in Palestine for refugee German Jews.

ANCIENT RITES AS CONANT IS INDUCTED

Harvard Ceremony of the 17th Century to Be Followed

A simple and ancient ceremonial, dating back to the 17th century, will be used at the installation of James Bryant Conant as president of Harvard, the university announced today. The formal induction will take place in the faculty room of University Hall at 4:30 p. m., Monday, Oct. 9.

President Conant will receive the traditional insignia of the university, the college charter, seal, books and keys, in the same manner they were handed to Harvard's presidents during the 17th and 18th centuries.

The ceremony will be attended by approximately 150 persons, including heads of various departments of the school, senior members of the faculty, the seven house masters, the president of Radcliffe, the tercentennial historian, president of the students' council, a delegation of graduate students, the Fellows, Overseers, various officers of the university and President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell.

Gov. Ely, Mayor Curley and Mayor Russell of Cambridge also are expected, as well as six members of the board of preachers.

The ceremony will begin with the placing of the charter, seal and records on a table in the center of the room. Dean Willard L. Sperry, chairman of the board of preachers, will then recite a short prayer.

George R. Agassiz, president of the board of overseers, will then present the insignia of office and they will be briefly acknowledged by President Conant. To conclude the ceremonial, the University choir will sing the 132d Psalm, the same one that was sung at the conclusion of John Leverett's inauguration in 1707.

The insignia to be used dates back as far as 1843.

Bridegroom's Name Divorce Grounds

Camden, N. J., Sept. 30—Mrs. Michael Richnovsky, who thought she was Mrs. Mike Stewart, won a master's recommendation for a divorce on the basis of her disillusionment. She eloped to Elkton, Md., with a man she had known as Mike Stewart. At the close of the ceremony, however, she was more than surprised to read on the marriage certificate that her married name was Richanovsky.

Fisherman Is Held as Rum Craft

New London, Ct., Sept. 30—The 40-foot fishing boat Mabel, of Hartford, was seized as a rum runner off Fishers Island and brought to this port with her crew of two as prisoners.

O'CONNELL'S 11 TO SEE GAMES

Mayorality Candidate Joseph F. O'Connell's All-American eleven and Mrs. O'Connell, mother of the eleven, will be football game guests of Harvard and Boston College this autumn, women workers in the O'Connell campaign were told today at the Hotel Westminster.

"You might be interested to know," said Candidate O'Connell, "that football managements of Boston College and Harvard have invited Mrs. O'Connell and myself to attend one of their games with our 11 children. As I am a graduate of both institutions, I was delighted to accept.

"I believe I'm the only mayoral candidate able to introduce to his fellow alumni a complete American eleven and their mother."

CHICAGO WORLD FAIR HONORS W. R. HEARST

Miltiary Parade Will Precede Speeches Tomorrow

Chicago, Sept. 30 (US)—Distinguished civil, political and military leaders will participate Sunday in ceremonies at the Court of the Hall of Science in tribute to William Randolph Hearst, in whose honor the day was set aside by a Century of Progress.

The honor guard will assemble in the Court of Honor at Fourteenth st., south of Field Museum, and will proceed east to the Avenue of Flags, south to the Hall of Science, and thence to the Court.

ARMY BAND IN LINE

In the group will be an army band, two companies of infantry and one troop of cavalry from Camp Whistler, five American Legion bands, a bugle and drum corps, a group of Legionnaires and automobiles carrying speakers and guests.

Speakers will include President Rufus C. Dawes of a Century of Progress, National Commander Louis O. Johnson of the American Legion, United States Senator Dieterich and Lieut.-Gov. Thomas F. Donovan.

Other eminent speakers will be Lieut.-Gen. Milton J. Foreman, Governor Herring of Iowa and Miss Harriet Vittum of the Northwestern University Settlement.

ONE HOUR OF SPEECHES

Telegrams from Governor Horner and Senator J. Hamilton Lewis will be read. The speaking program will last from 12:45 p. m. to 1:45 p. m.

The program will open with the playing of Hail to the Legion by the Fort Wayne, Ind., band, whose director, Earl S. Cheever, a wounded veteran, composed the number. The band won the Indiana state championship the last two years and won fifth place at the National Legion convention in Detroit two years ago.

Concluding the program will be the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the Fort Wayne and Sioux City bands.

Wedding Is Off

Thamira Swirskaya, exotic Russian danseuse, whose marriage to Frederick G. Fischer, 62-year-old "young blade," has been postponed because his daughter has had him put in an asylum for mental incompetence. (International News Photo.)

ASYLUM BLOCKS NUPTIAL PLAN

New York, Sept. 30 (INS)—Pictured as a gay blade of 62 who has proposed to six women since the death of his wife four weeks ago, Frederick G. Fischer, Manhattan attorney, today was back in Bloomingdale Hospital, his proposed marriage to Thamira Swirskaya, beautiful Russian dancer, postponed.

Fischer and the dancer had planned to be married last Wednesday, but his daughter, Mrs. Donald Hobson, obtained a court order ruling Fischer mentally incompetent and committing him to the hospital for examination.

The gray-haired attorney seemed amused at his daughter's declaration he was financially irresponsible, that he ran up florists' bills for offerings to fair damsels and that he carried photographs of women about and showed them to doormen at clubs.

Fischer, who inherited [illegible] from his wife, was ordered returned to the hospital until Oct. 16 when a hearing will be held to determine his mental competency.

Unidentified Body Pulled From Harbor

Efforts are being made today to identify the body of a man about 65 years of age found near the Meridian st., East Boston, bridge in Boston harbor last night. The body is at Northern Mortuary.

The victim was described as 5 feet 7 inches tall, weight 145 pounds, gray hair, bald on top, light complexion, gray eyes, no teeth. A star was tattooed on the back of the left hand.

He was found unconscious in the engine room of the boat, on its way from Lord's cove to Lubec, Me. Captain Pendleton took the boat to Eastport, Me., where physicians pronounced the young man dead.

COAL LEADERS STILL FIGHT FOR UNION

Tear Gas Bombs Used On Strike Pickets as Siege Ends

Pittsburgh, Sept. 30—Left-wing leaders of the far-flung bituminous coal strike and leaders of the West Virginia-Ohio steel workers "holiday" today flung down a "no union recognition, no work" ultimatum in answer to wage agreements signed by President Roosevelt this morning.

The "siege of Clairton" by 4000 striking coal miners was called off suddenly today so the miners may study a coal code agreed to by the H. C. Frick Co. and other "captive" mine operators.

TEAR GAS USED

The first untoward incident occurred this morning when a cloud of tear gas was loosed among three truckloads of striking miners, a unit of the army of 3000 pickets who invaded Clairton in an effort to draw out employes of the by-product plant of the Carnegie Steel Co.

Company police who fired the gas the miners had halted their trucks in front of the main entrance and refused to move on. Loosing of the gas followed by only a few hours the decision of several hundred company employes to join the strike.

NEW MARCH PLANNED

Leaders of the coal strike, which has forced about 85,000 men into idleness and crippled the entire industry, refused definitely to order the men back into the mines on the strength of the new agreement.

Hoarse from strike exhortations to his followers, young Steve Petronic, president of the Footedale Local, United Mine Workers of America, epitomized the strikers' position. He said:

"That's great news about the agreement, but we'll keep up our strike. We're not going to quit now. That means we are not going back to work until Frick recognizes the union."

A compatriot of Petronic's added:

"We'll march 40,000 strong on Clairton next week."

Frick Company Promises Full NRA Cooperation

Pittsburgh, Sept. 30 (AP)—The H. C. Frick Coke Company in a statement issued today pledged "to co-operate to the fullest extent with the government" to promote the NRA but made no mention of recognizing the United Mine Workers of America.

Jessie Costello on Ironic Trip to N. Y.

Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, recently acquitted of the poison slaying of her husband, Fire Capt. William J. Costello, of Peabody, is spending the week-end in New York. She arrived there early today by boat. The journey was ironic for the same ship carried several hundred Greater Boston firemen to New York on their way to the Legion convention in Chicago.

Brookline Hugger Routed by Screams

Brookline police were engaged in a search today for a young man who attacked Mrs. Helen V. Bigelow, 35, as she parked her car in the garage in the rear of her Cumberland ave., Brookline, home. The youth fled when she fought and screamed.

He is described as about 25 years of age, 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing about 200 pounds.

Greensburg, Pa., Sept. 30—Mrs. Vaughn Fern Rubright told the court her husband dropped snakes down her back. She was granted a divorce.

Doctor's Son Willed Twice Sum He Saves in Decade

On his savings during the next 10 years will depend the fortune of Francis X. Corbett, 16-year-old son of the late Dr. Jeremiah J. Corbett, Boston and Malden eye specialist.

That was one of the provisions in the $1,000,000 will of the specialist that was filed in Essex County court at Salem.

Other provisions were made for his widow, who now lives with her son in Pierce rd., Lynn, and for many public institutions and schools in which Dr. Corbett was interested.

Another novel provision was that his two optical shops, one in Malden sq. and the other in the Little Building, be conducted for the benefit of his estate for a six months period and then go to the present managers, John J. Collins and Albert E. Hickey, respectively.

The son, a student at Boston College High School, will receive twice as much as he saves annually under the terms of the will. When he embarks on a business or professional career he will be given $5000 outright and at the end of 10 years will receive outright double the sum he has saved.

Among the colleges and schools named in the will, Harvard Medical School was given $50,000 for a scholarship fund; St. Francis Xavier College at Antigonish, N. S., alma mater of Dr. Corbett, was given $50,000, and sums of $15,000 each were given Boston College and Holy Cross.

Revere Sleepwalker Picks Ocean Bed for Stroll

It took the police department, the fire department, and three milkmen to effect the rescue today of a youthful sleepwalker who strolled into the Atlantic ocean off Beach st., Revere.

Victim of the somnambulistic ducking was Ernest Roy, 20, of Portland, Me., at present visiting with relatives on Kimball ave., Revere.

Informed by telephone that an unknown man had plunged into the surf at Revere beach, Revere police sent a life-saving squad headed by Patrolman Franklin Noland.

Off in the general direction of the coast of Europe, the officers could hear a lot of splashing, but it was dark and set down along the ocean front, so they sent for the Revere fire department.

Firemen, clattering to the scene in the rescue wagon, rigged high-powered searchlights, but to no avail.

Further up the beach, however, three milkmen, attracted by the commotion and the lights, parked their wagons and ran down toward the water. They heard splashing near at hand. Wading into the surf, they hauled to shore Sleepwalker Roy, pajama clad and near exhaustion from cold and immersion. After treatment by Dr. Edward Velker, the boy was able to be taken to the home of his Revere relatives.

MANSFIELD GAINS ON FOLEY IN STRAW BALLOT VOTING

Former State Treasurer, for Second Day in Row, Polls More Than Leader in American-Advertiser Test

Frederick W. Mansfield, former State Treasurer, pulled into a stronger position for mayor of Boston today.

For the second successive day he led the day's balloting in the Straw Ballot Test Election conducted among the registered Democratic voters of Boston by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The voters mailed 776 postcard ballots to these newspapers today, bringing the total of the canvass to 9175.

Mansfield received 265 votes in these returns to 242 for Dist.-Atty. Foley, thus adding a net gain of 23 votes to his gain of the preceding day.

A blanket could be spread over the two who lead the race thus far. The margin between them is now 493 in favor of Foley.

O'CONNELL ALSO GAINS

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell found himself more soundly intrenched in the next position, while Chairman William A. Reilly of the Boston School Committee and Governor's Councillor Daniel H. Coakley improved their relative standings.

The latest returns of the Straw Ballot Test Election conducted among the registered Democratic voters of Boston by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser were as follows:

William J. Foley	3459
Frederick W. Mansfield	2966
Joseph F. O'Connell	628
Theodore A. Glynn	503
Malcolm E. Nichols	497
Joseph A. Tomasello	216
William A. Reilly	144
Daniel H. Coakley	143
John J. Connors	113
Michael H. Sullivan	101
Henry Parkman, Jr.	77
Thomas C. O'Brien	65
Paul A. Collins	60

Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron	1

From the headquarters of the O'Connell for Mayor Women's Club there was mailed an official notice to O'Connell adherents not to overlook him in the Straw Ballot Test Election. Said the notice to O'Connell supporters:—

"When you receive your straw ballot from the Hearst newspapers, will you please mark a cross beside Mr. O'Connell's name and return the duplicate card with the vote in his favor."

Assumedly it was meant for the voter to mark his ballot and drop the postcard ballot into the nearest mailbox. Nothing more is necessary. The cards are delivered as is other mail to the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser and in these offices they are sorted, counted and tabulated.

MORE FOR PARKMAN

Sen. Henry Parkman, Jr., received a larger proportion of postcard ballot votes in the returns which came in today from the Back Bay wards. Parkman is a Republican but Democrats were writing his name into the blank space at the bottom of the ballot as they were, too, for ex-Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, whose grand total reached 497.

City Councillor Clement A. Norton received a block of 17 votes and Judge Michael H. Sullivan, former chairman of both the finance commission and the school committee, found an increased ratio to the total vote.

The interesting straw ballot test election can be said yet to be in its initial stages. Slightly more than one-tenth of the vote is now in, and there is plenty of room for surprising changes in the standing.

The latest returns will be announced tomorrow in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and daily thereafter in the Boston Evening American.

Toot 'n' Crash, Moderns at It Again

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—American composers of modernistic tendencies are in clinical session today and tomorrow at Yaddo, formerly the estate of Spencer and Katrina Trask, now a refuge where creative artists may work out their inspiration in peace and without living expense.

George Antheil, for years a musical storm center, is to be heard tonight, playing his "Death of the Machines." It was Antheil who blew the fur pieces from the necks of a New York audience some years ago by the use of airplane propellers in one of his compositions.

Another whose music is being heard is Henry Cowell, the California composer whose habit it is to write piano music to be played with the forearm flat on the keys; on occasion he even strikes notes with his nose, or an elbow.

CAHILL RANSOM DEMAND MADE

A new demand for $3000 from the family of Harry P. Cahill, sought in the strangle murder of 10-year-old Peggy McCarthy of Somerville, was under investigation of police today.

The first demand, made by telephone a week ago, was branded a hoax, but the second was followed by the visit of a man whose description resembled that of Cahill at the home of a Malden woman.

Mrs. Mira Coolen, near whose home in Fairmont st., Malden, the first hoax was perpetrated, told police the man who resembled Cahill visited her home with another man, who said he was a guard, and that "Cahill" told her to instruct his family to comply with the ransom demand. The Cahill family had previously received a telephone demand for the money.

BID FROM G.G.A. SPURNED BY COAKLEY

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

An invitation to appear before the executive committee of the Good Government Association preferably next Tuesday afternoon, was today spurned by Daniel H. Coakley.

In connection with its forthcoming endorsement the executive committee of the association has started to interview each of the candidates for mayor.

STICKLER FOR FORM

The Democratic member of the governor's council, after admitting he had received an invitation to appear at the association's office, 44 School st., said:

"No, I'm not going down. I read the name of George R. Nutter on the stationery and of course as he is a personal and legal enemy of mine, the man who induced the bar association council to inject my reinstatement petition into the campaign—I'm afraid I'd say things down there while looking at him that wouldn't be decorous.

"Whatever they say about me I have always been a stickler for form. I suppose Fred Mansfield will be down there. He'll be decorous but he'll get it on the chin just the same."

Reaction to the call, broadcast to a score of prominent Democrats by Chairman John W. Newman of the city committee, appealing for assistance in the movement to center support behind one Democrat to win in the mayoralty fight, is not as rosy as it might be.

Many of these local men feel that the note of despair in the Newman letter was entirely unjustified, that a Democrat will win in any event, but that all good Democrats are and should be concerned to see that the best qualified Democrat is given universal support.

SEEK NEW COMMITTEE

In fact there is a growing feeling that the services of the city committee should be given a vote of thanks and asked to give way to some new group which might have better chances of success in promoting support for the "best Democrat to win." An announcement of the forming of such a group may be expected any day.

Congressman John W. McCormack, of South Boston, one of the leaders called upon by Newman to "do something," will be out of town over the week-end. When he returns he will reply to Newman. An answer is expected also around the first of the week from Congressman John J. Douglass, of East Boston, when he returns from Washington.

KORISKY RETIRES

David Korisky, member of the Democratic City Committee and candidate for the city council from Ward 14, today withdrew from the council contest in order to support the mayoralty candidacy of Henry Parkman, Jr., Republican state senator.

Korisky, in a statement explaining his action, charged that while ostensibly the Democratic City Committee is seeking to aid the strongest and ablest Democrat in the race, there are "two groups operating to stifle the Democracy of the city either to attain their own selfish ends or to promote their own private revenge."

WAR TO END ON INNES

In a fighting statement issued from his headquarters, Senator Parkman declared war to the bitter end against the "Curley-Nichols-Innes combination."

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, at outdoor rallies in East Boston, predicted that the women will settle the election, that they realize that there has never been a time in the history of the city when the question of a municipal government in sympathy with the family life was so important.

Father of 11 children, he thought that he is the best qualifed of the mayoral candidates to meet this requirement.

Salem Firm Given U. S. Job in Vermont

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—The treasury today awarded the contract for building a new international boundary inspection station at Canaan, Vt., to the Salem Construction Co. of Salem, Mass. The Salem company's bid of $21,800 was the lowest of several submitted.

The contract, which was made to comply with the labor and wage provision of the National Recovery Act, provides for completion of the project within 200 calendar days of the signing of the contract. The limit of cost of the project is $47,390.

once a matter of course everywhere. Well-meaning judges, when forbidden to torture witnesses, even though accused of no crime, protested that justice could not survive the abolition of torture.

In Rome, at one time, certain persons could not be tortured. These included soldiers, children under 14, and pregnant women, unless they were accused of treason or sorcery. When the French Revolution abolished torture, that was called a radical, dangerous, unwise and altogether reprehensible attack on justice.

Roman law that forbade the torture of pregnant women, unless accused of treason or sorcery, also allowed such women to pick and eat fruit in any garden, without interference or punishment. They may not do that now.

Old China forbade torture of children under 15 and adults past 70. Sawing the accused in two, lengthwise, has been one unpleasant, but popular punishment in Asia.

Dr. Blake, teacher of dramatics at Columbia University, tells poker players:

"Don't watch your adversary's face: look at his ELBOWS. If he holds them close he is trying to control emotion and that means 'bluffing'."

Another who knows more about poker than Dr. Blake could possibly know, Mr. M. L. A., of Chicago, who knows many things, says:

"When you play poker, watch the other man's THUMBS. It cost me money to learn how to keep my thumbs from jerking nervously when I bluffed."

In Hindoo courts when barefoot natives testify, lawyers watch the witnesses' big toes. When they move involuntarily, the witness is lying. The face is always calm.

There is a third piece of advice, better than the two given above, namely, DON'T GAMBLE.

Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, beginning at sunset last night, ending at sunset tonight, is observed all over the world as a day of sorrow, with greatest solemnity.

Many Jews, observing the sacred day, will include in it the hope that a day of atonement of a different kind for a certain gentleman in Germany may not be far away.

Atty.-Gen. Cummings suggests that something be done about the gang of sharks called "lawyers," making it their business to protect criminals whom they know to be criminals, dividing their earnings with them and sometimes planning crimes for criminals too stupid to do their own planning.

The national government is looking for some lawyer, name unknown, "who plotted the Chicago federal reserve holdup and directed the Kansas City Union Station massacre." This "mystery lawyer," planner of crime, ought to be fined and made an example to discourage his thousands of brother lawyers in the same line.

Anybody helping a burglar to hide his loot would be put in jail. Why not put a lawyer in jail when it can be proved that he has tried to protect a criminal, knowing him to be guilty and to hoodwink justice?

Uncle Sam's representatives hope that taxes on liquor will bring into the treasury seven hundred million dollars a year. That would help, a little, but the country has passed from the million to the billion dollar stage, not only in foolish loans to Europe, but in expenditures at home. We need BILLIONS. Mere millions are old-fashioned.

In fact, three and a half billions appropriated for unemployment relief will have melted away by January 1.

A GREAT FRIEND OF---
Mr. Carl F. Vannini

When 'Spot,' this English bulldog was presented to Donald Vannini, four years old, the youngster fled in panic. 'Spot,' considerably hurt by the incident, waited several days before wagging his fragment of tail when Donald sought a reconciliation. That was all six months ago and even to this day Spot maintains a sort of aloof dignity as Donald puts his foot in Spot's mouth, sits on him and gives other immature evidences that he regards "Spot" as an ex-menace.

In his early days in the Vannini home at Jamaica Plain "Spot" aroused great mirth by his habit of barking so powerfully that he slid backward at each roar. Finding that his Frankenstein make-up alarmed no one he gave up these oral demonstrations and is now an accepted factor in a quiet and contented household.

WARNERS PLANS FOR MUSICALS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, Sept. 30—The return of Alice Gentle, soprano, to the screen is the strongest indication I know that musicals are really here and here to stay.

Louella O. Parsons

Two years ago Warner Brothers did their best to get rid of a contract they had with Miss Gentle. She had made one short for them and by the time it was finished musicals were no longer in favor and the Gentle voice was a drug on the market so far as the movies were concerned.

Now Radio has signed her to sing "Carioca Tango" by Vincent Youmans in "Flying to Rio," starring Dolores Del Rio, and there are already other plants afoot to keep her here for other musicals.

* * *

Twentieth Century's proud boast that "Broadway Through a Keyhole" would put Russ Colombo in a top spot set Junior Laemmle working nights to find a story. He thinks he has it in "The Love-Life of a Crooner," an original by William Anthony McGuire. June Knight, Max Baer's ex-girl friend, that is, his girl friend during the period that he was separated from his wife, will be teamed with Colombo. George Marion, Jr., is at work on the dialogue and Eddie Buzzell is lined up as the director. Miss Knight, who has been making personal appearances in Chicago, returns here in October for this big Universal event.

Writing Sequel

"Jimmy and Sally," Fox's trouble picture, will be without its Jimmy as well as its Sally. Miss Eilers stepped out of the cast first and now Jimmy Dunn has bounced out and testing is going on for a new leading man. Perhaps that means that Sally will be given the break she deserves, and Jimmy, too. Bruce Riley, who out of a clear sky got himself talked about as a promising young leading man after his first screen appearance in an Andy Clyde comedy at Educational, has been sent for by Sol Wurtzel to be tested for the role. They say Riley is the best bet in months.

* * *

The most censorable and most widely criticized picture ever made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, "The Red-Headed Woman," is to have a sequel. Katherine Brush's original story, which you will remember dealt with a promiscuous red-headed girl who practically forces a young and prominent married man to marry her, will continue with the heroine in Paris. Harvey Thew is writing the sequel which will bear the intriguing title of "The Red-headed Woman in Paris." Jean Harlow, who covered her platinum hair with a wig in the original number, is naturally the red-headed woman in the sequel.

Claire Trevor, pretty little blonde who suddenly found herself in a good publicity spot when she was rushed into the "Jimmy and Sally" picture in Sally Eiler's place has another assignment. Sol Wurtzel, who has ambitious plans to promote the little unknown, will team Miss Trevor with another newcomer, Howard Lally, in "The Woman and the Law." Irving Cummings will direct and who knows . . . We may have another popular Fox screen combination.

Snapshots of Hollywood

DON ALVARADO and MARILYN MILLER starting their romance all over again when Don visited New York; He is off to Italy this time, making the boat trip alone. Pretty NANCY LYON, daughter of SENATOR LYON, in a San Francisco hospital, improving after an operation for appendicitis. RICHARD DIX really in a very critical condition in a Santa Barbara sanitarium . . . It's flu. The press getting the third free feed within the week; Paramount buffet supper last night and preview of the Mae West picture, Warner Brothers' luncheon tomorrow and a preview of "Footlight Parade." SALLY O'NEILL taking in the sights at Catalina. MARIE PREVOST pounds thinner in New York, listening to a promising stage offer. CLIVE BROOK winning tennis honors at Arrowhead Springs. DOROTHY BAER, attractive wife of the fighting Baer, considering a movie offer from one of the film companies. JUNIOR LAEMMLE, who has put on 10 pounds and looks great, says he is between romances now. WINFIELD SHEEHAN cables from Berlin but says nothing about the Hitler situation. Adolph Zuker home from the hospital today feeling much better.

A Royal Pair

Two of the show world's most popular funsters just had to put their heads together when the winter season got under way at the fashionable Beverly Wilshire Hotel in Beverly Hills, California. A whole flock of film notables were there and Ed Wynn, known far and wide as THE Fire Chief, and Poly Moran, who has created millions of laughs, did their bit to make the inauguration of the new season a big success. International News photo.

Two Weeks to Each Drama

Manager Al Luttringer announces his policy for the National Dramatic Players at the Wilbur—a change of play will be made every two weeks. There will be matinees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The Wilbur opens again next Monday and the vehicle chosen for the company is Rachel Crothers' "As Husbands Go." Among the company's principals are Walter Gilbert, popular among Boston theater-goers; Gladys George, beautiful and talented; Jean Arden, Sara Perry, Audrey Berry, William Janney, Ralph Bishop, Forrest Wood and Frank Farrara.

Ina Claire at the Plymouth

The Theatre Guild will present S. N. Behrman's comedy, "Biography," with Ina Claire in the leading role, at the Plymouth, Monday night for an engagement limited to two weeks. The play attained the longest run of any dramatic production in New York last season.

"Biography" is the story of an attractive woman who has lived fully. Beneath its surface is to be found a satirical study of American morals. S. N. Behrman, the author, will be remembered by those who have followed the fortunes of the Theatre Guild, as the playwright who wrote "The Second Man," and "Meteor."

Holds Over

At the Majestic, because of a record rush of patrons to see the film, "Damaged Lives" is being held for a third week. This is a show presented for the welfare of the community, basically a gospel of health; but such is the drama of the photoplay and the appeal of the lecture that follows that it has had phenomenal success.

Bright Array of Film Folk in Photoplay at Orpheum

Acting ability gives high entertainment value to the current screen feature at Loew's Orpheum. The film is "Beauty for Sale," and in it you may see such clever folk as May Robson, Otto Kruger, Charlie Grapewin, Una Merkel, Alice Brady and some others almost as good, enacting a theme in stellar fashion.

The story is based on the Faith Baldwin novel, "Beauty," and concerns beauty parlors and such, with an interweaving of romance and tenser drama.

On stage, the Orpheum headlines a very bright song and dance revue, by Ralph Olsen and Company. Olsen leads a versatile cast of principals in a lively presentation of songs, dances and novelties.

Senator Murphy, humorous commentator on things political and social, fills another important place on the bill.

Charley Abbott and Eddie Bisland in comedy hodge-podge; Audrey Wycoff and company in an excellent presentation contrasting dances of yesterday and today, and Gautier's Animated Toyshop, a fine animal act, are other turns, as well as Boston's own Jimmie Gallagher.

Howard's Offering

To the Old Howard Monday matinee comes another Empire Circut organization known as the "Bare Facts" Burlesquers. Buddy and Betty Abbott, Eddie Lloyd and George Murray, Joan Lee, Nellie Casson, Bubbles Yvonne and June Rhoades are the stars, as well as Eddie Dyer, Lester LaMonte and Brownie and Bert Grant.

PAUL WHITEMAN IN TRIUMPH AT BOSTON

Ayres-Rogers Team Scores on Screen

By HARRIS MORGAN

The musical king is again in our midst—long may he reign.

And so, folks, Paul Whiteman is back, this time to the RKO Boston stage, with new musical gems and an entertainment that passes one hundred per cent.

* * *

As great an attraction as ever, Paul is the headliner on the new Boston bill. Topping the screen fare is "Don't Bet on Love," a bright and snappy comedy drama of young sweethearts and race tracks. Lew Ayres and Ginger Rogers top the cast and after misunderstandings and disappointments all ends well for the gambling plumber and his manicurist fiancee.

While this Universal film, written and directed by Murray Roth, is entertaining and a treat for the many Ayres and Rogers fans, it would take a super-film to steal the honors from Paul Whiteman and his girls and boys.

Still keeping that boyish figure—you see Paul, we have not forgotten—he guides his crew through a lengthy program, even including a Russian number. They are all specialists, many of them well known to radio audiences. Peggy Healy sings via the "mike," as does Ramona, who also contributes piano numbers. Then there is Jack Fulton and his songs nearly stop the show. Jack Rees and Betty Keans provide the dance highlights and the Four Rhythm Boys have a corking specialty.

* * *

"Don't Bet on Love" is a Lew Ayres feature. Pushing aside all interest in his father's plumbing business, Lew even allows his gambling instinct to cost him the temporory loss of his girl. He wins and loses a fortune, then comes the reunion. Ginger Rogers is the faithful Molly who refuses to marry Lew until he quits playing the ponies. She has many disappointments, but finally wins. Lew and Ginger do well in the leading roles.

All the thrills attending a horse race are packed in this film, be the scenes that of the "bookies" offices or at the race track. Tom Dugan is Lew's gambling partner and provides much of the comedy. Charles Grapewin is Lew's hard-working father whose advice he scorns. Shirley Grey and Merna Kennedy play the gold-diggers who cause Lew plenty of worry during his days of affluence at Saratoga.

Larry Flint and His Rhythm Kings play old favorites and the short screen offerings please.

Watchful

Keith Feature

James Magner

James Magner, Jr., bridge authority and teacher, will appear in the grand lounge of RKO Keith's Monday afternoon, between 4 and 6, to discuss bridge with patrons. His appearance is in connection with the showing of Ely Culbertson with his wife in their bridge experiences, first of which is "Murder At the Bridge Table" now current on screen.

Film Drama at Met Is Based on Reality

By LEIGH HARBRIDGE

Down to earth comes the movie camera in "Golden Harvest," currently highlighted on the Met program. It is a story plainly inspired by recent happenings in the Mid-West. Though movie folk enact its roles, wheat is its real hero, and the picture proves that a vast deal of drama lies in the staff of life grain and man's struggles therefor.

* * *

The other day we saw a picture in which Genevieve Tobin was a Chicago pork packer's daughter. In "Golden Harvest" she is the child of the Wheat Pit's chief figure; and just as she did a grand job in the Edward Robinson film, she covers herself with glory in the later movie, in which Chester Morris is her hero. He is a farmer's son who eschewed the old estate for the big city's lure; in Chicago he becomes a man of might. Back home his brother, played by Richard Arlen, follows the plow, and, when hard times come, leads the embattled farmers in a strike.

Through their opposite interests, brother is set against brother; and I am glad to be able to report that there is a neat ending.

The work of the players is satisfactory. Principal of them is Miss Tobin, very fine. Mr. Morris is saliant and vigorous as is his wont to be; Mr. Arlen tries his best to look the planter.

* * *

On stage, the outcome is far more glamorous. There is a superb bill of varied versatility. The star is Vaughn de Leath, shining in the musical comedy revue. Other highlights are the Hickory Nuts, another radio contribution; the Four Baxters, Eddie White, the Hoover-Camp dance team, and Jerry Franks. Altogether, the galaxy of talent stirs up plenty of applause.

Mr. Sevitzky is present with the big orchestra, succeeding, as usual; and Mr. Martel presides at the console.

'Stage Mother' With Splendid Cast Headed by Alice Brady, Featured on State Bill

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Give Charles Brabin a theme, and Alice Brady a six-cylinder role and good entertainment is bound to be the outcome. This is what happens in "Stage Mother," at Loew's State. Its author, by the bye, is Bradford Ropes, a Greater Bostonian. He can thank Director Brabin and Miss Brady that for most of its way it has the throb of real photodrama.

* * *

The Ropes story has much merit. It may not be his fault that it goes commonplace toward the finish; Hollywood may have demanded a sacrifice to the happy ending fetish. The central conceptions are expert. Miss Brady is the lady of the footlights whose soul is wrapt up in the career for her daughter, played by Maureen O'Sullivan. The lass has been nurtured in Boston—you see the writer must remember the old home town. Through thick and through thin the mother strives and struggles.

Then she discovers young love's romance menaces her own life's dream and burning passion. She centers every effort. She even descends to crooked means to smash that affection.

Up to this point you have driving dramatic momentum, with Mr. Brabin the most exquisite directorial touches. He puts the cream on the pie. He brings out all the emotional power, plus grand touches of humor, sometimes slyly satirical.

After reaching a cinematic peak, the narrative "goes Hollywood" and never regains its strength. Fortunately, this occurs well toward the close.

Miss Brady is magnificent, Miss O'Sullivan is lifted to higher level of acting than ever before. Ted Healy is a master mimer, and Franchot Tone is swell, what he has to do; Phillips Holmes makes even shorter stay on screen.

Despite the ending—which may be what audiences like—the film will leave two sharp impressions: Miss Brady's relentless way to benefit her child, and Mr. Brabin's brilliant direction.

New Shows

SHUBERT—"Let 'Em Eat Cake," successor to "Of Thee I Sing," with the same stars, William Gaxton, Victor Moore and Lois Moran; gala premiere next Monday night.

WILBUR — "As Husbands Go," by Rachel Crothers, presented by Al Luttringer's National Dramatic Players as first play of series, each for two weeks. Opens Monday night.

HOLLIS—"Windy," new play by T. P. Tarrant, and produced by Harry Eliven, set to open next Tuesday night.

'Faust' Well Presented

By MOSES SMITH

The steady crescendo of improvement which has marked the performances of the Chicago Opera Co. since it opened its engagement at the Boston Opera House on Monday of this week continued unabated last night when Gounod's "Faust" was given a creditable presentation.

The singing of the principal members of the cast was especially worthy of comment. Lucy Monroe, as Marguerite, had a fresh and pretty voice, unusually true in intonation and artistically employed. Ralph Errolle, who was the Faust, was a vastly improved singer over himself as the Duke in the opening night's "Rigoletto." The Mephistopheles was Nino Ruisi, whose resonant voice was perhaps a bit rough, but by no means unpleasant. Marie Powers sang very well indeed as Siebel. Alice Homer was the Martha, and Lorenzo Cianfrini the Valentine, the character whose principal importance lies in a single lush aria and a protracted death, several pages of music long.

And these singers caused surprise by the excellence of their acting—acting noteworthy not only for verisimilitude but also for good taste. Miss Monroe made a charming heroine, always in character, a Marguerite to whom any Faust might well have been attracted. Mr. Ruisi did not cheapen his great role by clowning it; he had some amusing business in the garden scene, but never permitted the spectator quite to forget the dignity of his Satanic majesty. Though a female voice is never convincing when assigned to a male character in opera, Miss Powers almost overcame that handicap in presenting Siebel as an innocent and charming young gallant.

On Gayety Stage

For one of the outstanding events in all its history, the Gayety tomorrow goes Hollywood de luxe, with a presentation of Hobart Bosworth in person. This great screen and stage actor, who has starred in more than 500 movies, will be the center of an interesting feature.

Love Can Be So Tantalizing

The pipings and sandal-like trimmings on the black suede shoe sketched top right are patent leather. Center, a brown suede pump trimmed with kid motifs and gold piping is shown. The third shoe is a blue kid pump with a lizard arrow piercing a circular cut-out.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

SHOES for general town wear will have to offer plenty of variety this season and most of it will be dressy. The familiar trio of black shoes, brown shoes and navy blue shoes will be just as useful as ever to most women, but with a difference. The plain brown number that ensembles neatly with a simple crepe frock and a sealskin jacket must be replaced by something keen in kid or suede for wear with more elegant afternoon costumes, and so on through the wardrobe. The NRA or something just as potent has speeded up interest in really giddy clothes, now that it is not only fashonable but patriotic to boast of leisure.

Suede is always smart for autumn and winter, and this year it is being treated to a grand revival which involves intricate contrasting appliques and stitchings for trim, and brand-new colors which harmonize with popular fabric tones.

Operator 13 Receives Word That Puts Her Again on Gailliard's Trail

Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan Production, made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

In an incredible short time a telegram, in answer, came in, clickity-click, from Col. Sharpe:

Glad you got Andrews. Turn Mrs. Dorn loose and send Miss Quilter and Miss West to the Old Capitol prison.

Keep after Gailliard. There is another dangerous spy with him, naval lieutenant who is likely to attempt to destroy the shipping. Try your best to arrest or kill these two Confederate secret service agents.

"All the New York City regiments have now been ordered to New York and are already on the cars. The Seventh Infantry should arrive tonight. Inform the local authorities."

VULNERABLE SPOT

This was an open telegram. The girl handed it to Acton. The brigadier also read it over his shoulder.

"I wish the Seventh Regiment would hurry," he said quietly. "If the mob starts for the Navy Yard we can't stop them."

"They can burn the river front and all the commercial shipping, also," said Acton—"even if we turn the guns of Governor's Island on them. Only—they don't seem to know it."

"Some fellow like this rebel naval officer, Cleburne, will start them pretty soon," remarked the brigadier.

At that moment a message came from the Twenty-ninth Precinct police station: "They are turning Negroes out of their houses in 32nd st."

Acton replied: "Is there much trouble?"

"Yes," came the answer, "they are hanging a negro to a tree in 32nd st. Send us aid."

Acton said: "Here general, see what you can do for us."

A few minutes later, Capt. Mott with a section of regular artillery galloped to the scene of riot and let go a few bushels of grape, which settled the matter—25 rioters falling at the first discharge.

Then the Twenty-first Precinct wired: "Has the Eighteenth precinct station house been burned?" And Acton answered: "Yes, look out for the gas house in 14th st."

Back came a telegram: "Capt. Reynolds and detachment, United States Infantry, surrounded on Fifth ave., fighting for their lives."

"General?" said Acton calmly; and the brigadier wired instructions to Gen. Sandford at the arsenal.

Another telegram: "A huge mob is marching downtown through Union sq. Their object is the 20,000 muskets in storage at 56 Greenwich st. I have no reserves to cope with them."

NO RESERVES

Another dispatch followed from the 28th precinct: "The mob is firing buildings in Second ave., near 28th st., and sacking houses at 27th st., and Seventh ave. No force here to send out."

"Riot at Pier 4, North River," telegraphed the first precinct, Capt. Warlow; "mob murdering colored people."

Then, from Capt. Walling, 20th precinct: "Capt. Hedden, 16th precinct, telegraphed that a disciplined mob on Fifth ave. is gathering under the leadership of men who are supposed to be Confederate officers. They have two field pieces, muskets and pistols. They have taken 100 horses from the Red Bird omnibus stables and are mounting rioters as cavalry. It is believed that they are going to destroy the Dunderberg. A secret service agent should get in touch with them and report their destination to headquarters."

"Well, ma'am," said Acton quietly, handing her the scribbled message passed up by a police telegrapher.

The girl read it, paled a little, but rose immediately.

Gen. Brown remarked: "This disciplined mob' they speak of looks like Cleburne's and John Gailliard's work."

"Yes," said Acton, "Telegraph me from the Sixteenth Precinct ma'am; and I'll put the police force there at your disposal. I want this Capt. Gailliard, dead or alive."

Operator 13 was examining her revolver. The brigadier watched her reload it.

"Be very careful not to do or say anything to annoy the mob or arouse its suspicions," he cautioned. "Mingle with the rioters and get your information; then go to the Sixteenth Precinct and telegraph Police Headquarters."

DESPERATE MOBS

"I can send you in a city hack as far as Grace Church," added Acton.

So Operator 13 went out into the street and got into a waiting hack. At 10th st. she got out, crossed 14th into Broadway and walked north to 23d where the very heart and center of swarming life and activity in the noisy city.

It was noon but all the shops were closed, the streets deserted, not a living soul was stirring. In the terrifying silence the sun poured down on the pavements through a foul haze of smoke.

The girl looked fearfully around her, and, for the first time saw men lying on the pavement across Twenty-third st. For a moment she did not realize they were dead.

Then, gradually, she became aware of the distant crash and rattle of firing, and from far up Broadway she saw a crowd coming. It was led by half-grown boys and women.

Behind them, jamming Broadway from curb to curb, trampled men with fire-blackened hands and faces. They were armed with axes, pitchforks, bludgeons, burning torches, pistols and muskets. They had a red flannel flag and they were brawling: "Down with the rich! Down with the police! Down with property! Down with the war! Kill the niggers; kill the rich; burn everything!"

Clattering in their wake came an uncouth company mounted on clumsy omnibus horses and flourishing swords and pistols. Behind these marched masses of dirty, desperate-looking men with shouldered muskets, dragging two iron cannon by long, tarry ropes.

SWEPT ALONG

The shrilling, roaring tumult nearly deafened the girl; yelling men, boys and women swarmed past her, shouldering her ahead with them.

"Where are we going?" she gasped out, clutching the sleeve of a gaunt fellow smeared with blood and cinders.

"We're going to blow up the navy yards and burn the ironclad," he said hoarsely.

There came a sudden halt in the procession; the omnibus cavalry began to gallop heavily to and fro, disputing with some of the mob that wished to go to Ninth ave. and start killing Negroes before they destroyed the ironclad.

Shouting and haranguing, their leaders argued and cursed until the disorder, spreading, became a fierce mutiny. All semblance of discipline disappeared.

Then Operator 13 saw a young man with military bearing, evidently a gentleman although wearing overalls and red flannel shirt, ride up on a handsome horse and urge the mob to continue its march to the water front.

OFF TO REPORT.

In the yelling confusion the girl slipped away into 20th st. and hurried across Sixth ave. to the 16th Precinct police station, where Capt. Hedden and Inspector Dilks had just arrived from a terrific fight at 22nd st. and Second ave.

The station house was full of wounded policemen when Operator 13 entered. Inspector Dilks caught sight of her and recognized her; she asked him to listen while she dictated a telegram to Mulberry st. Capt. Hedden also came to the telegrapher's desk to listen.

"To Commissioner Acton," she began breathlessly. "A mob numbering several thousand is at Broadway and 21st st. Their avowed intention is to destroy the ironclad. They have two iron cannon, and many muskets. There are perhaps 50 of them mounted on omnibus horses. A kind of discipline was maintained among them until a dispute arose regarding a proposed raid into a Negro district on the West Side.

"I think the Confederate spy Cleburne is in command. I think I saw him.

"If you could send a body of troops and a hundred policemen to the 16th Precinct, Capt. Hedden and Inspector Dilks will join them with the force here. Operator 13."

"Yes, ma'am, we will," said Inspector Dilks coolly.

EXHAUSTED

In a few minutes the telegraphic reply came back: "Four hundred ex-soldiers of New York Guard regiments, under Col. Nevers, will march to Webb's shipyard. I have no police to send you. Capt. Hedden will support Col. Nevers if required to protect the big ironclad. Tell Inspector Dilks to arrest or kill Cleburne if possible. Is Capt. Gailliard with that mob?"

"I did not see him," replied Operator 13. She dictated in a steady voice, but her body was shivering in the July heat.

Captain Hedden brought her a sandwich and a cup of coffee. She tried to eat but couldn't.

Sgt. Wright, in ragged disguise, arrived to report. He appeared to be convinced that Confederate agents were in command of this particular mob. They were preaching a northern revolution, not a local riot. One of them—a fair-haired, graceful youth—had a small Confederate battle flag in his hand, and he was demanding that it replace the red flannel rag tied to a rioter's rusty bayonet.

Diathermy for Treatment in Disease

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

I receive many inquiries regarding "diathermy." Information is requested about the use and value of this new method of treatment in the cure of many disturbances.

Dr. Copeland

In order to answer these questions it will be necessary to go somewhat into detail about diathermy and how it affects the tissues of the body.

A recent statement of the Council on Physical Therapy of the American Medical Association states that "diathermy is the therapeutic use of a high-frequency electric current to generate heat within some part of the body." It is divided into two classes. That form of diathermy used for medical ailments, such as arthritis, neuritis, rheumatism, myositis, pneumonia, and other inflammations, is spoken of as "medical diathermy."

When the diathermy is used for removal of tumors, new growths, swellings or other abnormalities, it is spoken of as "surgical diathermy." Recently this has been replaced by the word "electro-surgery."

In medical diathermy the current is applied so as to produce heat in the body tissues. Just enough strength of current is used to bring about a favorable reaction, but not sufficiently high to damage or destroy the tissues of the body.

Diathermy is of great benefit in certain disorders of the body. But let it be remembered that it should be given only by the experienced and trained physician.

Diathermy is harmful to health when used in acute inflammatory conditions, such as cellulitis, acute arthritis and other acute infections of the body. It is especially dangerous if used on an individual who has a tendency to hemorrhage.

Recently diathermy has been successfully used for the removal of tonsils. In this method of treatment the tonsils are destroyed after several sittings in which the current is applied first to one tonsil and then to the other.

Conditions Rule Bridge Penalties and Premiums

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The choice between penalties and premiums at the Bridge table is frequently difficult to decide. Shall a game, which appears reasonably certain to be made, be bid or shall opponents, who have ventured too far in the bidding, be penalized? The proper solution of this question is one depending upon many conditions—the type of opponents, the temperament of your partner and, in rubber play, the state of the score. It is silly to accept a penalty of 250 points, or possibly even 450 points, in lieu of a two-game rubber, which you are assured you can make. It is wise to set opponents three tricks, doubled, or 450 points, in lieu of making the first game of a rubber, although, paradoxical as it may sound, it is, generally speaking, wise to accept a penalty of 450 points rather than to permit opponents to undertake a game contract which they are certain of fulfilling. Four hundred and fifty points is slightly more than the value of the first game, on a strict mathematical basis, but on the opposite side of the balance are the times when your adversaries will overbid, the times when you are not doubled and the times when the gods of distribution come to your aid and you find yourself making a contract that appears impossible. Many good Bridge players pass fairly good hands for a swing, and the hand below is one which South as dealer, not vulnerable, decided offered better chances of profit by an opening pass than by an opening bid. If by any peculiarity of the shuffle either West or East held a strong heart or spade hand, then South could quite effectively interfere with them. If North was strong enough to bid, then certainly South could enter the bidding with splendid effect.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North:
♠ A 9 8 6 3

East:

South:

♣ K Q 8 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass (1)	1 ♡	2 ♡ (2)	3 ♡ (3)
3 N T (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) South passes in accordance with the principles outlined above.

(2) Showing a strong hand although actually North should not bid two hearts over one heart as his hand is far too weak. A Double for a Takeout or an immediate bid of spades offers a better alternative course. In view of the four honor-tricks, the Takeout Double would be the correct call.

(3) Of course, East's Raise is wholly distributional. He hopes to obstruct the exchange of information between North and South.

(4) South is confronted with what appears to him the choice between a sure game contract and a profitable Penalty Double. Finally he decides that as North's bid is so strong it must show a strong spade suit and strength in both clubs and diamonds as well. In order that the hand may play in the best contract, if that should be notrump, he chooses the bid of three notrump rather than three spades.

West opened the spade King against the three notrump contract, feeling that there was an excellent opportunity to beat the hand and sure that South would be disappointed in North's spade holding.

The play was quite interesting. The first trick was won with the Ace, and the Ace of clubs laid down. This disclosed that West had a void in that suit and that only three club tricks were available for the North and South players. Making the best of what appeared to be a bad situation, South now led a small spade from Dummy and West was again in the lead with the Queen. He now shifted to a diamond, hoping to place his partner in the lead with the idea of capturing South's heart stopper by a lead through. This, however, was exactly what South wanted and he played a small diamond from Dummy, which East won with the Knave. The anticipated heart play now followed, South playing the heart Queen, which West won with the Ace. West now returned another diamond, which was won in Dummy with the King, and a club led, which was won in the closed hand with the King. Now West's high spade was driven out, and the remaining tricks went to the Declarer.

It will be noticed that despite the fact that South had an opening heart bid, the penalty double would not have been nearly as satisfactory a solution of South's problem as the bidding and making of a game. The choice of a contract is a close one, but a game may be made if the hand is played at spades also.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North opens with a call of one diamond and East calls one heart. What should South call, holding the following hand?

♠ Q 9 4 ♡ A 10 8 3 ◇ J 4 ♣ A 5 4 2

Answer: One notrump. Despite the fact that the hand contains 2½ honor-tricks and two stoppers in her heart suit, a two no-trump call should not be made, as this bid would be practically Forcing and partner might be unduly encouraged to bid a Slam.

Rich Treat for Children Planned

Among the six plays for children which the Boston University women's council are sponsoring this season are two by well-loved New England authors, Margaret Sidney and Louisa May Alcott. Mrs. Everett O. Fiske, president of the council has announced that a rare treat is in store for the girls and boys who expect to see Clare Tree Major's production of "The Five Little Peppers" at the Repertory Theater on Nov. 4.

Miss Margaret Lothrop, daughter of Mrs. Daniel L. Lothrop (Margaret Sidney) has invited all the children, as well as the council members, to the famous old Wayside Inn at Concord, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 7. Members of The Children of the American Revolution, an organization which Mrs. Lothrop founded, are also invited.

Miss Lothrop will show her guests the places where the Book Children and the Real Children played in this historic old house which saw the British soldiers pass in 1775 and where Nathaniel Hawthorne, Louisa May Alcott and Margaret Sidney lived and wrote.

The young guests will climb the narrow stairs where Meg and Jo, Beth and Amy played pilgrim's progress, and sit before the great fireplace where Margaret Sidney heard of the adventure of her Book Children, and where the little Hawthorne children sat in the red-gold fire light and heard their famous father tell Tanglewood Tales.

Among the patronesses and sponsors of this adventure and of the plays are Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Mrs. Joseph B. Ely, Mrs. Frank G. Allen, Mrs. Philip Saltonstall, Mrs. Richard Cabot and Mrs. Henry D. Tudor.

Fiesta Planned to Benefit Fund for Harriet Tubman House

WITH THE ECHO OF ENTHUSIASTIC response of the summer colony of the North Shore, where the first two performances of the Fiesta Fantastique were held, the social season at the Copley-Plaza ballroom will open, on October 13 and 14 with a "Social Frolic" and "Paris at Midnight," under the direction of Mrs. Edmund O'Connell, of Boston, to aid the Harriet Tubman House of Boston.

Artists of international reputation have been engaged, including Mlle. Drexelle and Leanardo, introducing for the first time in America their famous tangoes and apache dances, which they made famous in Paris, Buenos Aires and Madrid. Rudolf Coffi, late star of the Student Prince, Clara Shear, of the Chicago Opera Company, Frances McDonald of Stepping Stones, co-featured with Fred Stone, Miss Jessie Stone, famous torch singer, and Jeska, dancer of the Russian Ballet, will be featured on the program for both evenings besides the stars from the leading stage shows in town. Monsieur Ricard and his Orchestra, from the Club Martiniere in Paris will furnish the dance music.

Mrs. Edmund O'Connell

The general idea of the entertainment is an elaborate production in two acts, on the style of a Parisian Follies with a grand ballroom arranged in the manner of a European Casino. A mirrored stage will reflect the panorama of the room with its many spotlights and galaxy of stars.

The patronesses include Miss Mary Curley, Mrs. Clement Kennedy, Mrs. Harold F. McNeil, Mrs. Maynard Ladd, Mrs. A. Lincoln Filene, Mrs. John F. Moors, Mrs. Edwin P. Crawe, Mrs. John L. Paine, Mrs. Lawrence Green, Mrs. William S. Youngman, Mrs. Raymond Brackett, Mrs. Mildred Gillies, Mrs. James C. Duane, Mrs. Hollis Harrington, Mrs. William B. Cowboy Quilt

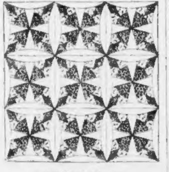
—By Laura Wheeler—

We associate simplicity with the life of a cowboy. This quilt, aptly named Cowboy's Star, is outstanding because of the simplicity of its design, and the ease with which it can be made. Generous pattern pieces make the sewing of the block a short task. The finished quilt is one that is especially lovely, for one block ties up in design with the next, making a continuous pattern.



PATTERN NO. 489

Pattern 489 comes to you with complete, simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth ave., New York City.

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

MANY DELIGHTFUL OLD THINGS HAVE come to the fore again this season in many new forms, and for all their smartness they lose none of their old time charm. Fans, earrings, furbelows and frills are with us again. All the picturesque touches that our grandmothers liked, have been revived. The glamorous furbelows which can lift a very simple frock into the realm of the unusual are being widely worn. Purple and fuschsia are being favored for evening wear, and jewelry has definitely come into its own this season.

MRS. THEODORE FROTHINGHAM, JR.

Perhaps the most becoming and decorative jewels one can wear are earrings which play a very important part in one's life these days. Very beautiful imitations are so carefully made that it would be difficult to tell them except on close inspecton from the real jewels and stones.

The new shoulder mode either makes or mars you. To some it is the essence of smartness, those military epaulets, and others who did very nicely in an unadored mode suffer from these glorified wings. If trying, it is at least distinctive, and it is with interest we observe those who can wear the mode and those who cannot.

Miss Margaret Swift, debutante daughter of the Howard P. Swifts, who yesterday made a smart debut at a luncheon given in her honor at the Concord Country Club, is a type who wears these bepadded and befrilled shoulder effects to nice advantage. She is tall and slender, and her black satin military frock with a trig black hat trimmed with shiny black feather is altogether smart and effective.

Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, nee Eleanor Fabyan, is one of the petite type who looks exceedingly well in the new mode. She is leaving shortly for a month's visit in California where she will be the guest of Mrs. Charles P. Greenough, Jr.

Most Attractive

MISS CAMILLA ALSOP of Milton, who is making her debut this year, is an especially attractive young lady. Her winter studying in Switzerland and Paris have given her an enviable background. She is interesting and charming to talk to with constructive ideas, and a decided poise of manner.

She is slenderly built, and wears these new and interesting styles with all the swank they need.

Mrs. Henry Hall Newhall, who before her marriage was Miss Paula Patch of the North Shore and Boston, is planning to open her house at 216 Commonwealth ave. late in November. Her good-looking soft brown ensemble was outstanding in its chic mode. Her hat being of brown shiny satin, very becoming and trig.

Mrs. Gerald A. Boardman, who spent the summer on the North Shore, has lately returned to town and is wearing one of the new fall modes with padded shoulders and puffy sleeves, and have you noticed that good-looking pair of earrings she sports, very becoming and very odd in type?

Mrs. Robert S. Ogden is always so smart looking and so well tailored. Her semi-formal gown, floor length, high waisted and full sleeves, with a modish hat sporting a large, black velvet bow, is an outstanding ensemble in any group. Mrs. Ogden wears a particularly lovely string of pearls, so dainty and well matched that they may be worn with the most glamorous of evening wear as well as with the informal sport wear. Such is the quality of true elegance. It is never out of place.

At Fashion Show

HER SISTER IN LAW, Mrs. Richard Clark Floyd, who has returned from the summer on the South Shore, attended a fashion show the other day wearing a tailored black ensemble that was outstandingly chic. Mrs. Floyd, who is a most animated and colorful person with black hair and flashing dark eyes looks particularly well in black, though we cannot overlook that svelt grey outfit in which she appeared not many moons gone by, with a high grey fox fur collar, and sumptuous matching cuffs. She was a picture in that ensemble. Another charming color for Mrs. Floyd is deep crimson. Her living room is decorated with colors of this glowing shade against a background of ivory coloring, and it is always a delight to find Mrs. Floyd backgrounded by coloring that is such a compliment to her good looks.

It is one of the most intelligent things the society matron can achieve to make her home a compliment to her personality, and it is interesting to see how many smart matrons succeed in achieving this effect.

BOOKS---And Other Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

There is one little story in Zona Gale's new collection, which she calls "Old-Fashioned Tales" (D. Appleton-Century Co.), which is as heartbreaking as anything I have read in a long time. "Lights Out" is the name of it, and it concerns an old couple driven, at last to the county poorhouse, through no fault of their own, simply the victims of circumstances.

It is old-fashioned, I suppose, in this rushing age, to feel one's heart quiver, and almost snap, reading of such lonely people, destitute at the end of their piteous lives. And so Miss Gale's little masterpiece was rightly included in a volume so titled.

She can tell, as few authors can, a great deal in a little space. Within the compass of a few pages she can make you see the entire life of an individual, merely by hitting the high spots, passing over the years as a storm passes over the earth. A hint here, an incident made known there, and suddenly you have a tragic vision of someone's existence, from the cradle to the grave.

* * *

In another story like "The Night of the Storm," she can review a feud in one flashing paragraph, revealing the reason for many people's clumsy behavior. A little child is lost on a bitter winter's night, and an enemy of the father's accidentally discovers her, while others seek with ropes and lanterns all over the wide prairie. Then comes the real drama, when the father refuses to believe that the child is thus found, and dark suspicion arises in him. The end is gloriously simple, and the feeling is left with the reader that hatred is of little worth. Old-fashioned, too; but these old themes will never die.

But Miss Gale, if she but knew it, is modern also. "A Way of Escape" shows a young married group at a dinner party, and we see how commonplace they are in their suburban self-conceit. But behind the party lies a tragedy of which they are not aware, and there is a spiritual battle between a husband and wife who learn much of each other which otherwise they might never have learned.

In "A Winter's Tale," as in "Lights Out," Miss Gale uses the same idea, but does it with a neat turn of humor, and the outcome is happy rather than sad.

In her foreword, Miss Gale calls this a "light collection," but it has body, and it blazes now and then with a furious flame. There are twenty tales in all, and they can be read with profit as well as with pleasure.

In his biography of "Oscar Wilde" (D. Appleton-Century Co.) G. J. Renier throws no new light on the strange, paradoxical man who amazed those of the Victorian era, and whose brilliant career ended with his imprisonment, and his writing of one of the finest poems of our time and a prose justification of himself that had in it all the self-consciousness which he could never quite shake off.

Mr. Renier speaks of Wilde's plays with unstinted praise. He says that "Lady Windermere's Fan" richly deserved its success. Perhaps it did, in its era; but I defy anyone of intelligence to read it now without bursting into the kind of laughter it was not meant to evoke. He says that the play displayed creatures of flesh and blood. Reading the lines they uttered, after the lapse of years, one finds them stilted and absurd. The men talk exactly as the women talk—a weakness that Wilde could never overcome.

* * *

The late Alice Meynell once told me that she considered Wilde, as an artist, distinctly third rate; and as the years roll along I am beginning to think she was right. All his biographies impress upon us his ready wit, but it is well known that he prepared most of his extravagant statements, and created situations that would lead to their apparently accidental utterance. Some of his poetry and many of his essays have a lasting value, but in the theater only one of his plays, "The Importance of Being Earnest," has a chance of survival. It is a legend that keeps his name alive, and, of course, while he lived, there was interest in him among those who wished to see how he would reshape and remold his life, to make it possible for him to go on when he left Reading Gaol. Frank Harris has written of those last fearful days spent in Paris, when Wilde found himself alone, and only a few people followed his coffin to its grave.

Now that the man has been gone these many years, his figure is a ghost upon a screen, and while some of his wit still sparkles and crackles, a newer form of what might be called humorous wisdom has taken its place, and Wilde's epigrams have lost their old-time lustre. His snobbery, his love of titles, robbed him of those human qualities which might have saved him when he needed saving, but he seemed to be interested only in "dying beyond his means."

CHINESE MOTIF IN NEW FASHIONS -:- SLENDER WAISTS FOR MERMAID FROCKS

Enter the Eastern Inspiration More About Feathers, Satin Ensembles, Mirrors

By Victoria Gaines

A FEW DAYS AGO, if you remember, we told you about those models among the Paris imports that had captured the fancy of the American woman. There was Mainbocher's dinner suit of wool and lame, Maggy Rouff's coat with the flared fur sections at the hips, Schiaparelli's coat with the "cat whisker" bow of civet fur, and others.

Here are some new numbers from the Paris collections that show signs of becoming successes this season—Vionnet's evening gown with the swathed shoulder line and perfectly plain silhouette—Patou's evening ensemble with everything concentrated toward the back, back fullness, fur trimming and all—Chanel's "coat-hanger" coat with the fur collar and fur strips down the sleeves giving it a wide-shouldered silhouette—and Lyolene's evening gown with the "harness strap" neckline and the bustle back.

Now, it's all up to you. Do you like clothes that are popular, moderately-priced and authentically Parisian, in inspiration if not in execution? Then this is a safe and sure guide as to what you should wear. But if you want what no one else is wearing—then these fashions are not for you—for they're destined to become "Fords"—that descriptive trade term for all models which become so popular that they're turned out by mass production.

Clever—These Chinese

It's chic to be Chinese this season—what with Schiaparelli's Chinese costumes and all. So they're showing the cutest little Chinese collarettes now—of velvet, with brilliantly embroidered mandarin collars. They come in Chinese blue, jade green, scarlet and purple—and they're just the thing to pep up a dark dress.

Fine Feathers

We've written so much about the feather and fur fashions that the letter "f" on our typewriter is practically worn out—and still they come! This time it's feather trimmings on evening gloves and handkerchiefs—rows of curly ostrich feathers edging the cuffs of the gloves or the hanky.

And we've already told you about feather-trimmed hats—but the newest thing is the hat made entirely of feathers—a close-fitting toque all of coq feathers!

If by some oversight of the feather manufacturers, you've managed to get an evening gown without any feathers at all, then there are sets of feather epaulets that can be attached to the shoulders of your evening frock—giving you an "angel-wing" look. To say nothing of the feather capes, boas and bags galore that are flying around the fashion scene.

We just hope we don't see any feather-trimmed lingerie, that's all!

New Ensembles

If you're one of these people who must have your things match exactly, you'd like the new ensemble effects we saw the other day—satin blouses and berets to match—knitted caps, scarfs and gloves for sports—suede hats and bags with a matching metal motif—all in the season's smartest colors. And if this shop doesn't have just the set you're looking for, they'll get it for you! It isn't a case of, "All we have is what you see on the counter, Madam" — instead, it's "If we haven't got all, we'll have it made for you!", Very inexpensively priced, too.

Mirror Jewelry

Honestly, we think this thing is going a bit too far—about costume jewelry, we mean. We're not surprised any more to see "junk jewelry" made of metal and wood and glass—and what have you! We're even resigned to satin and velvet jewelry. And we remember with tears in our eyes the linen and pique jewelry of last summer. But now they've come out with—guess what!—mirror jewelry—and we've just made up our minds that enough's enough! There are clips and pins and bag ornaments all made of mirror glass—reflected glory, as it were.

Feathered Frocks

EVERYTHING from pheasant to ostrich from paradise to coque feathers will be seen on the important gowns this winter. Callot uses long graceful pheasant feathers on the sleeves of a black velvet dinner gown. Molyneux puts an abundance of ostrich plumes on a molded gown of green brocade, while Lelong edges the cape of a brown velvet cocktail frock with yellow paradise.

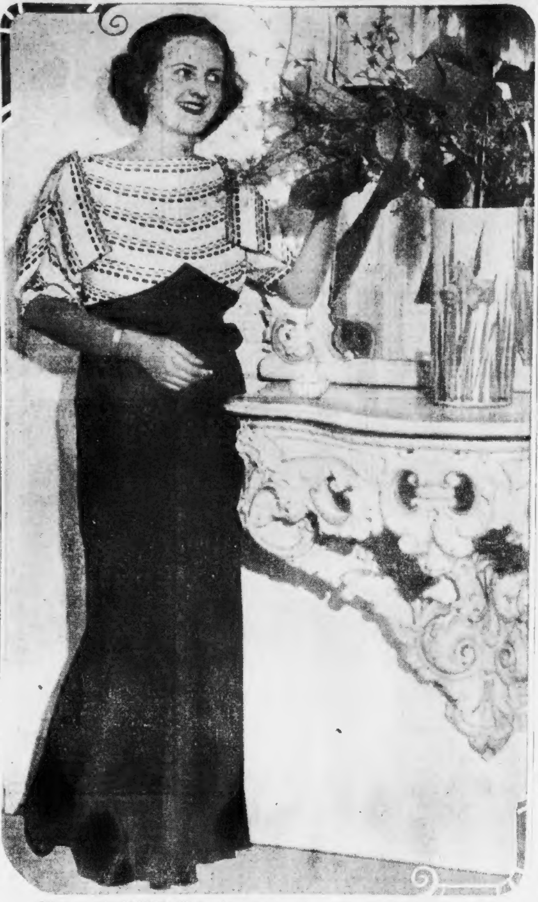
The Mode of the Moment Described by Well-Known Women



MISS ALICE MERRIAM, daughter of Mrs. Ralph W. Gray of Mt. Vernon pl., and a debutante of the past season, looks especially charming in a model of black bagheera with a bodice of black, white and silver lame, which was designed by Vionnet.

By Margaret Matson

FEW PEOPLE are so fortunate as to have the lovely complexion that is Miss Alice Merriam's. With her slow, engaging smile, her halo of dark hair, her large shadowy eyes, her full lips, and rich fair skin she is particularly captivating.

Miss Merriam was one of last season's popular debutantes and is the daughter of Mrs. Ralph W. Gray, who is herself numbered among the Hub's smartest women.

Miss Merriam favors that loveliest of fabrics, bagheera. In case you do not recognize it by that name, it is the subtly lustrous uncut velvet which one sees this season. In Miss Merriam's frock it is in black with top of lame in black, white and silver.

The shoulders are interesting without being exaggerated and the neckline that cuts so severely across the throat dips low in the back. Its elbow sleeves make it perfect for dinners, impromptu parties and the theater. With a hat and jacket it becomes another of this fall's smart dinner ensembles.

Bagheera deserves all the praise that it is getting. It not only has a most satisfying texture, but it softens colors beautifully and drapes close to the figure in a superb and not-too-revealing manner—a characteristic that can be appreciated by practically everyone.

One can choose any of several silhouettes for her fall and winter evening finery. Many prefer the uterly simple skirt falling softly from the hips to the floor without any definite break. Others like the sheath that clings, while others choose the stiffer fabrics straight in the front and billowing or trailing out into a bustle or train in the back. Miss Merriam is very partial to the simpler lines. Her clothes are always decidedly tasteful.

Ordering Meal at Hotel

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been troubled by a problem of etiquette for some time and no amount of discussion with my friends wholly satisfies me. Here it is:

When a young man dines with a young lady at one of the popular "dinner and dance" cafes, how is the ordering of the meal accomplished? Does the gentleman receive from the lady her order and then transmit it along with his to the waiter, or should each of the diners give his and her own order to the waiter?

FRANK.

The first is the correct way of doing . . . the lady giveas her order to the man, her host, and he relays both orders to the waiter. If the orders differ, he takes special care to give the woman's order first.

Sending Birth Announcement

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

I have some birth announcements I wish to mail to friends and relatives. I have a brother-in-law who is married. I do not care for his wife. Should I send the card just addressed to him, or would it be better not to send any at all, knowing that she will feel the slight keenly.

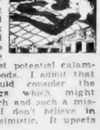
C.

Even though you aren't particularly fond of your brother-in-law's wife, it would be the mannerly thing for you to address the announcement to both wife and husband. It would be rather ridiculous of you to make such a point of your dislike in a circumstance that can't make much difference to you.

—PANDORA TELLS YOU—

DEAR PANDORA.....

Do women worry more than men? I mean do they let little things trouble them and spoil all chance of getting any fun out of life until the worry season is all over? My wife does. She can take some minor thing about which I would not think twice, and turn it into one of the world's greatest potential calamities. She broods. I admit that everyone should consider the various things which might arise from such and such a misfortune, but I don't believe in being too pessimistic. It upsets me.



My wife's particular anathema is colds. At the slightest trace of a sniff or even a whiffle, she makes a dash for the medicine cabinet, and within three twitches of the proverbial lamb's appendage, is tucked away in bed, not to stir until the supposed crisis is passed. Not only is she firmly convinced that any little draught is sure to bring on pneumonia, but everything she handles must be sterilized before it may come into her hands. This may be merely the correct way to behave under the circumstances, but I think it's a bit absurd. When I contract a cold I'm utterly ostracized.

When she's in the house I have to stay in one room and not move out of it. I have to use a separate set of dishes . . . can't read the papers, because of the germs. The straw that breaks the camel's back is that I have to sleep on the couch in the living room, which I had planned to [illegible] away after the dog got [illegible] from lying on the dar[illegible]

Is there nothing I [illegible] to rid my wife of th[illegible]ucinations, and stop these persecutions . . . or is she right?

CHILLY.

DEAR CHILLY:

There doesn't seem to be much you can say. If your wife has that kind of mind that worries about everything, there's not much that can be done. Suppose she thinks that she is coming down with a cold. She wraps herself up in blankets, doses up and prepares for the worst. Nothing can convince her that she isn't due for a long siege of terrible illness. Your only chance is to give every aid and attention and then indicate that quick recovery is now naturally, assured.

As for your colds—you surely do not want to endanger any such chronic worrier so all her precautions protect you. It's bad enough when she gets her own colds. Imagine how she'd be if you gave her one.

So I should say on the whole that she was more or less right. You can't really be too careful of colds. Though she seems to exaggerate danger of catching anything, even that is better than taking chances. Evidently this is your cross to bear. Right off the ice,

PANDORA.

The Marry-Go-Round; Love Vows

By HELEN ROWLAND

IN ALL HISTORY there has never been a time when stockings, lovers' vows and marriages have been so light and perishable as they are today.

Fashions in women, like fashions in hats and jewelry, change from year to year. Just now the popular type is cold, sophisticated icicle which has replaced the St. Vitus dance effect—just as the hats which once covered the eyes have backed away to the crown of the head.

Doctors used to say that a man dug his grave with his teeth; but prohibition has taught him a quicker and pleasanter way to dig it—just by crooking his elbow.

There never will be such a thing as "equal rights" until women can get as big a thrill out of seeing a man with his spine exposed as a man seems to get out of seeing a woman in a backless evening gown.

A normal woman just can't bear to see a bachelor hanging around loose when some woman might be using him for a husband.

It's fr easier to love a person who possesses a few of your own little vices than to love one who marvelous virtues fill you with an inferiority complex.

A snob is a human flea, who fancies that he'll look more important if he can attach himself to a big, thoroughbred dog.

Hosiery Colors

EVERY FALL the shades of hosiery go darker to blend with the richer winter fabrics and colors that come with the falling of the leaves. This year is no exception. Only the colors are even more interesting than usual. A high fashion hose in the Lady Lou manner has a black heel. These are very attractive with black suede shoes.

Daily Suggestion for Self-Improvement

Get a hobby. Don't ride it until your friends walk around the other side of the block to avoid you — but get a hobby for your own pleasure. Collect books. That is one of the most satisfying hobbies I know. Take up music industriously, enthusiastically or just for fun. Start a crazy quilt. Knit some sweaters or make some children's clothes for the needy. Join a club. Or two of them. Take to bridge violently, scientifically. But whatever the hobby is that you choose, do it with all your heart and interest so it will pay you dividends. Then boredom will fly out of the window and croak on some other window sill.

Sheath Evening Gowns Demand Suppleness and Slender Lady Lou Waists

By Therese Deschamps

THIS LITTLE HUNCH we had a few days ago that curves might get the best of us if we did not watch them, evidently rang the bell.

Just what to do with the waist line in the new sheath dresses seems to be the greatest problem. There is no place for excess flesh to go—except off.

The new foundation garments will help, of course, but their object is control—not restraint. It is up to you to acquire a girdle of muscle as a foundation for your foundation garment.

Feet Apart

1—Stand with feet apart and raise your arms above your head. Bend slowly to the left, without bending the knees or shifting your feet. Return slowly to an upright position, then bend to the right. Repeat this exercise 10 times or more.

2—Sit on the floor as if you were sitting in a boat or rowing machine, the knees bent, your hands resting on the tops of your shoulders. Then, extend the legs straight in front, and at the same time bend forward to touch the tips of your toes. Pull back to the original position, and continue the exercise as if you were pulling for a far-distant shore.

Flat on Floor

3—Lie flat on the floor, face down, palms of the hands against the floor about three inches apart, elbows bent. Raise the whole body from the floor, resting the weight on hand and toes. Your chest will leave the floor first, then the abdomen, then hips, knees and legs. Hold this position while you count three, then slowly lower the body, letting each part touch the floor in reverse order. Do not do this exercise more than four or five times at first.

The standard exercise of touching the fingertips to the toes, without bending the knees, is also an excellent way to reduce the waistline. And if you feel yourself weakening, when the first muscle twinges set in the day after you begin your exercises—just go out and take another look at those stunning Lady Lou fashions.

If you need a more strenuous exercise schedule than we have given you here, please send us a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request. Address your letter to Therese Deschamps, Boston Evening American.

Beauty Questions and Answers

Hair Ribbons

Question: Many of the children are now wearing hair ribbons. My daughter is a 1933 model, and she demands that instead of one large bow on the top of her head, she have two bows one above each ear. Is this stylish for children?—Mrs. C. J., Newton.

Answer: Hair ribbons are very popular now and for older girls as well as children. Your 1933 model is typical of the modern child who knows what she wants. More power to her. If her face is round and of the piquant type a half-inch band of ribbon with a bow above each ear should make her attractively saucy. Part her hair either in the center or a tiny bit off-side, and catch the larger part of her hair in back of the ribbon.

Eye Wash

Question: I work under artificial lights and each morning when I get up my eyes burn and there's some swelling. I don't think I need glasses, because just as soon as this burning sensation passes away the vision is clear. Have you something you can recommend for this?—Miss L. M., Roslindale.

Answer: Some women spend 20 minutes in the morning, two hours in a beauty salon and a half-hour at night on their nails, face and hair, but entirely neglect their eyes—half of their beauty lies in their eyes. We're mailing you the name of an eye wash that is very beneficial to the eyes, and it should relieve the burning sensation. We suggest, however, if, after using this for a week or two and there is no noticeable improvement, please consult an eye specialist.

Coiffure

Question—I am a daily reader of your column and I'd like a little of your advice. I have dark brown hair, brown eyes and olive skin. Will you please tell me what shade rouge, powder and lipstick I should use? Also, I have a thin face, will you please tell me how to comb my hair so that it will become me. Thank you.—Miss T., Dedham.

Answer—Select a shade of powder the same color as your skin or a shade lighter. Use dark rouge and lipstick for your day makeup—a more brilliant color at night, depending upon your frock. You don't say whether or not your hair is short. If short, it's best not to have it cut above the ear line. Although short haircuts are the mode, nothing is good style that you don't wear well. Keep it curled and waved so that it will fluff attractively about your face.

Lines on Neck

Question: Although I am very young, I have deep lines on my neck. Can you tell me the cause? And is there any way to get rid of them? Thank you very much.
—Mrs. H. M. P., Lawrence.

Answer: You don't say, but you probably have very dry, sensitive skin. Or this may be the result of some illness you have had. You your dance program. But if you have invited your escort, you act as hostess. (6) When attending need exercise and a rich, nourishing cream massage into throat to lubricate the skin from the outside. Try to regulate your diet so that it contains a reasonable amount of fatty foods. This should assist the oil glands to function properly. We have the name of the nourishing cream and the outline of the facial exercise which we will mail to you if you wish them.

Curling Fluid

Question: Thank you so much for the name of the hairdresser you sent me. I went to him and he was very satisfactory. For years I had parted my hair on the same side, and, as it was getting thin at this part, he suggested changing it. I had that done, but find it very hard to train. Can you give me the name of a fluid that will help hold it in place?

MISS L. N., Auburndale.

Answer: We're mailing to you the name of a curling fluid that isn't sticky and will help train your hair. One should never part the hair on one side for "y'ars and y'ars and y'ars," because, as you say, it has a tendency to grow out thinner.

Bath Salts

Question: I don't care for bath salts, but I do like a perfumed bath. Can you give me the name of something that I can use?

Dorchester. MRS. A.K.

Answer: We're mailing the name of a new bath essence, just out two days ago, that only needs a few drops in a bath to perfume it. It comes in two odors, jasmin and ambre, and will last forever, or nearly so.

Baby Kit Saves Steps for Mother

KEEPING UP with the spirit of the times—conveniences to avoid unnecessary effort—we have discovered a kit that is just the thing to save many footsteps for mothers.

When baby's bath hour arrives do you usually have to give Paavo Nurmi competition by running all over the house—and find the soap in one place, the powder another, and the oil still another? Here's what the doctor ordered for you.

The kit complete! There is Baby's powder, soap and olive oil, that reaches you in a cellophane wrapped package—Mr. Germ does not come calling here. Aha, do I hear you mention something about "the price being the catch?" That is the "catch," but not the way you think it is—it comes complete for only 39 cents.

The olive oil is sterilized and pure. The delicate skin, so needful of exquisite care, will appreciate the soothing qualities of this daily rub.

We'll send you the name of this "wonder-box" and where you can purchase it upon receipt of your request and a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Lively Colors for the Football Season

Nice, practical sports clothes are the order for the day. The football season is in the offing. The dolly variety of clothes to wear to football games went out with the Ark.

Sportsy clothes—very sportsy clothes—even to the swagger fur coat of civet cat. If you intend doing the football season up brown or to the last notch of perfection, there will be the coat of leopard.

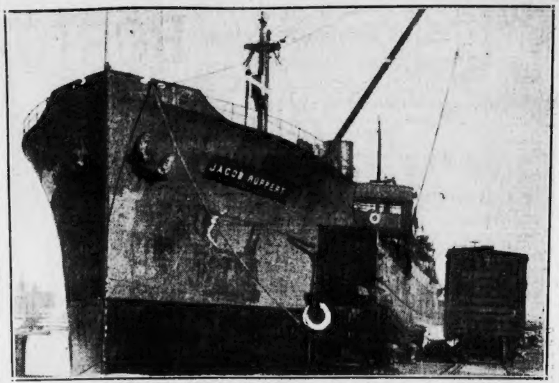
ENTER FOOTBALL MASCOTS ✦ LOAD BYRD SUPPLY SHIP

BEAUTY-BEAST

Boston University's football team was without a mascot Of course football teams must have mascots. So students "patched in" and bought one. Florence Barrett of Brighton, B. U. sophomore, is the guardian, at present. The pup was to be presented to the team today. How could they lose with a matscot like this?

THEY COMMAND POLAR CREW

Under the expert direction of Chief Engineer W. K. Queen, Needham Heights, and Capt. W. F. Verleger, members of the crew of the S. S. Jacob Ruppert, one of the Byrd supply ships, will make their way to the frozen South Pole. Both men are veterans of the sea. The boat is now at the Boston Navy Yard.



S. S. JACOB RUPPERT READIES FOR POLAR EXPEDITION

The Steamer Jacob Ruppert, named after the owner of the great New York Yankee baseball club, and wealthy brewer, is being overhauled and loaded with supplies at the Boston Navy Yard. She'll be one of Admiral Byrd's ships at the South Pole. Extra heavy plates have been added to the hull, for ice-breaking. Many a big ice cake will meet its doom against these heavy steel plates. Plenty of cold weather is in store.

CHARLIE CHAN RELAXES

Just for a change from playing those heavy roles, such as the one he is now playing—the well known Detective Charlie Chan, at the Hollis Theater, William Harrigan relaxes a bit. He's reading some light literature to a boy patient at the Boston Floating Hospital.

SECOND BLOOM FOR DAD'S GRAVE

Little Margaret Ann Wells, 5, of Cambridge, thought she saw it. Sure enough, close examination revealed it. What, you say? Why, for the second time in a year Margaret's Easter lily has bloomed. And best of all, it blooms on Saturday. That's the day mother and Margaret visit dad's grave. The first bloom was on Easter Sunday. (Story on Page 4)

HONEYMOONING

ANCIENTS SAIL TO ST. JOHN ON TRIP

On to St. John, N. B., went more than 200 members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, last night. They were passengers on the S. S. Saint John. The week-end trip of the Ancients will be a jolly affair. There was included in the group Lieut. George C. Irwin, commander. He is shown at left as he chats with Col. Alvin R. Bailey, 88, of Newton, the oldest member of the organization and only G. A. R. member on the roster.

HOLD STILL—FRESHIE

"The Wearin' of the Green." No, not the song. But at Boston University freshmen are ordered to don flowing green cravats. This, of course, is the law of the seniors. E. L. Haskon of Hyde Park gets his tie a bit of a straightening by Gladys Hoffman of Jamaica Plain, an upper classman. Freshies will have to wear the green ties until they beat upperclassmen in the Thanksgiving Day rush. If they lose. Well, green ties are pretty even in the winter.

CATHOLIC HIGH TEAMS' SCRIMMAGE VIEWED BY CLERGY

Boston College high school and St. Mary's of Brookline high gridmen had the encouragement of this group of the clergy as the elevens scrimmaged at Franklin Field. In the above group are, left to right, Rev. George Dowd of St. Mary's, Brookline; Rev. Thomas Herlihy, S. J., B. C. high; Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael Splaine, St. Mary's; Rev. William J. McCarthy, and Rev. Cornelius Reardon, both of St. Mary's. All are ardent football fans. Fr. Dowd is director of the Catholic High School football league, of which St. Mary's is a member. Msgr. Splaine, pastor at St. Mary's, never misses a game in which his boys take part.

JOEY SARGENT

"GINGER" NEW WHEATON MASCOT

And if "Ginger" means pep, he's well named. Joey Sargent of Brookline, holding "Ginger," was one of freshmen who were ordered to wear their name on cardboard at opening events at Wheaton. Wheaton College is home for "Ginger." He'll be on hand when the girls face their rivals, whether on tennis court or archery lane. (Reynolds Photo.)

A Composite of the Season's Gridiron Stories ↕ New England Football Opens on Narrow Front

By AUSTEN LAKE

By HERMAN CHEEVER

Special to the Daily Clatter

Sept. 30—As those time-honored rivals, Poormouth University and Spearmint College, prepare to clash in their annual battle here this afternoon, much depends on whether Poormouth gets rolling. If she does, she will emerge victorious. If not, Spearmint should be triumphant. If neither gets rolling, or if both do, then the issue is in doubt and a tie is possible, providing neither can gain a winning margin.

Much depends on whether Coach Nails McCarthy is prepared to start his sophomore ace, Airmail Bogan, for if McCarthy decides to keep Bogan under wraps he will not be seen in action, if not, then Bogan will be in the lineup. A lot hinges on Bogan's superb, 200-pound frame, for if he clicks, Poormouth should make some nifty yardage. Depending on the caprice of the elements the day may be favorable for football.

By LADDIE WEEMS

October 1—Under the lee of Poormouth's ancient and ivy-mantled stadium today a new gridiron hero was born. Airmail Bogan, 200-pound, five-gaited sophomore halfback, smashed, wriggled and snake-hipped his way to six touchdowns and personally conducted Poormouth to a 57 to 6 victory over Spearmint. In the annals of New England football since Eddie Casey, Albie Booth and Swede Oberlander, nothing can compare with the hula-waisted, slippery-legged and nimble-toed son of Old Poormouth, who amassed the astounding total of 456 yards from scrimmage and literally drove the crowd of 35,000 into hysterics.

It was Rah! Tiger! for Airmail all through the hazy, breeze swept afternoon, and tonight the tawney-haired youth, a compound of greased lightning and TNT, can have anything his heart desires on Poormouth's elm-shaded campus. The one gloomy spot of the afternoon came when Gerald "Pimples" Farrell, substituting for Bogan, late in the fourth quarter, fumbled into the hands of a Spearmint end who converted it for a touchdown. The youth, a stumble-footed, nit-witted product of the scrubs, was hopelessly at sea. The game opened . . .

By DINGER CHAPMAN

October 8—Did I see things today? Did I? Your star-eyed correspondent unfurled his beard and fastened his bright peepers on Airmail Bogan, the high blood pressure sophomore for Old Poormouth. Here's a treat, sad I to me! So what? So Subway State a mere flag-stop station college from the canebreak, held Airmail to a single touchdown and gave him plenty, pul-enty, before Poormouth squeezed out a 9 to 0 wicktory.

This Airmail person, who eats a platter of tacks for breakfast and lunches on cold rolled rivets, must have been carrying a trunk on his back all afternoon, because the best he could slice off was a skin tackle jaunt of 15 yards for a goal, with the upstate applepickers draped around his neck like a string of beads.

I'm telling you, Horatius D. Chapman is telling you, and you can nail it over the door. If Coach Nails McCarthy don't dig up something to help this Airmail bird, who is the eggs in your coffee by hisself, he'll grow callouses on his ankles. A one man team is Airmail. There's no spangles on ball luggers like Pimples Farrell even if he did put over a corkscrew dropkick that your Aunt Minnie couldn't have missed with her game leg, a goofy shot that slewed like a dizzy goose before sneaking over the bar. And speaking of bars, folks, your commentator is going to . . .

By HERMAN CHEEVER

October 15—Using a complicated shift, a double wing with split ends and a decoy back, Poormouth today made a wry face over a 6-6 score with NRA. Pregame estimates were shattered when Poormouth's widely heralded offense stalled repeatedly on the lip of the goal, where Airmail Bogan, magic thunderbolt of the Golden Buzzards, was tied in a loveknot. It was Horsecar instead of Airmail, for he was seldom off the ground.

With NRA leading 6 to 0 in the fourth quarter, an obscure sub, Gerald Farrell, replaced the Great Bogan, and skirted NRA's end behind a perfect shield of interference, one of the few times that Poormouth's offense clicked, so that Pimples had little to do but put his feet on the ground and keeping peddling for the tieing score.

Coach Nails McCarthy is staunch in his belief that Airmail Bogan is All-America material and prophesies that he will win national acclaim. "But we are shy on substitute backs," observed Coach McCarthy.

By DINGER CHAPMAN

October 17—Well soaks—I mean folks, here's your cheerful little earful, slipping you the hot gossip from the roof of Old Poormouth's waffle iron, where Rumpsteak slapped down our homebreds to the tune of 12 to ouch. This P. M. proved an awful shock to the ft.-ball ambitions of Old Poorhouse—I mean Poormouth—with our pal Airmail taking a shampoo and a haircut. Airmail hung up some kind of All-America record for freestyle fumbling and from the way he was playing grabs with the pigskin, it looked like your little sister Tilly playing with the puppy until Coach Nails McCarthy bagged him with a blanket and injected a slinky hipped 12-cylindered mustang named Pimples Farrell. And what a winged-foot messenger of hope this boy was. In four plays he ripped Rumpsteak from stem to gudgeon and put the ball on the two yard line where the field judge tooted curfew on his fishhorn.

By LADDIE WEEMS

October 24—It's Trainwreck Farrell now! The wiry, chamois-footed halfback who has previously been Harry Bogan's substitute, dropped his old nickname of Pimples by popular acclaim today on Poormouth's ancient and ivy mantled gridiron, where, hitting the line like a wild buffalo, spinning the ends like a gray hound and driving through the field like a slippery eel, he personally accounted for every point in Poormouth's 36 to 0 victory over Muttonbroth. Bogan, the over-rated sophomore, who before the game was dropped to the scrubs, sat in the cheering section while Trainwreck Farrell rose to the heights of Eddie Casey, Albie Booth and Swede Oberlander, as one of the greatest backs in New England football annals.

Tonight Trainwreck is the toast of Poormouth's ivy mantled campus and he can have anything his heart desires . . .

MIDDLEBURY FAVORITE OVER B. U.

At Nickerson Field Riverside, this afternoon, Boston University's grid team will meet Middlebury testing whether the local's grid bite is as good as its bark.

The tilt will not be without its pageantry. Pre-game ceremonies include the presentation to President Daniel L. Marsh by George Slade, managing editor of the Boston University News, of a full-blooded Boston terrier.

A flag raising and tribute to the memory of William E. Nickerson, donor of the playing field in Newton, will follow.

B. U. HAS EDGE

The boys will then get down to the business of the afternoon, a first game for both clubs in which Middlebury has the edge in the matter of experienced players, and Boston University has its backers because of its superior weight.

In recent Boston University history, it would seem something untoward if the Terriers ever opened a grid season with anything approaching a veteran, well organized club. They manage to struggle through however. Part of their charm, probably.

One break, one way or the other will probably tell the story of victory and defeat by nightfall. B. U. has a chance to make this break when two sophomore "dark horses" go into action at the kickoff.

These are Warren McNamara and Ray Thompson both of whom start in the Terrier backfield.

Roy is standard B. U. football material. He was a substitute end as a freshman a year ago but returned this fall weighing a ponderous 165 pounds and that changed coach John Harmon's mind and Ray's position. He is now a carrying back.

One of the most verdant tyros as a back ten days ago Thompson lifted himself by his bootstraps into the B. U. starting backfield by virtue of his ability to "take it."

Up to His Neck -:- -:- And Aren't We All?

Four-year-old George McIntosh of Riverside has his day of days today. The Boston University Terriers, who are George's pride and joy, swing into grid battle against Middlebury. He'll be at Nickerson Field, Newton.

MASTER MIND OF NEW YORKERS PLAYS HUNCH

By JOE CASHMAN

Memphis Bill Terry's pre-series master minding suggests that the Giants' playing manager knows what the [illegible] about [illegible] his first season [illegible] and his World Series experience has been confined to one youthful stage back in 1924.

Bill's latest pronouncement that his National League champions will not have new uniforms for the title play.

"Why should we?" he chirps. "The series is not a style show, and a ball game is only a ball game whether it be a meaningless exhibition or a crucial money clash. The clothes we've worn all season will be plenty good enough for us against the Senators."

Few, if any [illegible] engaged in a World Series without becoming nervous and frightened. They go into action determined to play their natural game but invariably the importance of the affair crushes them as soon as play starts. Then they try to fight off the jitters and the harder they struggle, the more jittery they become.

GIANTS HAVE YOUTH

And the Giants, with collegians like Ryan and Schumacher [illegible] position and not a regular who is a 10-year man, shape up as most susceptible to this particular variety of stage fright.

So the wily Mister Terry smashes precedent with his uniform order. His charges are going to be as natural as he can make them.

It appears like a very smart move. Every glance at new uniforms would remind the Giants why they were wearing them. When they look at their battle-stained glad rags they may remember and profit by Boss Bill's belief that a game is just a game.

Of course, the uniform order or any other ultimatum isn't going to make the New Yorkers forget that it will cost them approximately $2000 each if they are beaten. They're sure to tighten up more or less. But it might well be the means of saving their necks.

The least nervous of two very nervous clubs is going to triumph. It's always thus. If the rival champions played no steadier during the regular season than they do usually in the championship tilts they wouldn't finish in the first division.

NATS TESTED MORE

The Senators, being more experienced on the whole, figured to be the more natural in the series, in [illegible] Terry had the happy uniform inspiration. That little coup-d'etat may give the Giants the edge which promises to spell victory.

Terry's order [illegible] unique, the first of its kind to our knowledge. It is an unwritten law of the [illegible] that champions [illegible] up and [illegible] their prettiest [illegible] the [illegible] clashes.

But other [illegible] employed different [illegible] of psychology in past World [illegible] with considerable success.

Connie Mack's [illegible] of starting Howard Ehmke [illegible] the A's against the Cubs in 1929, which you read about in this corner yesterday, settled that championship then and there, notwithstanding the critics' claims that it was very bad baseball. Beaten by a [illegible] the Cubs couldn't help but [illegible] of licking Grove, Walberg and Earnshaw and were [illegible] four times in five starts.

It will be recalled [illegible] late George Stallings [illegible] schemes back in 1914 which [illegible] they didn't help the [illegible] cleaning up against the A's [illegible] tainly didn't handicap the [illegible] men.

It is the custom of the home club in the first game of a series to open their park to the hostiles for practice on the morning before the opening.

OFFERED SHIBE PARK

Stallings was offered the use of Shibe Park in Philadelphia but he refused it. He insisted that the Braves be allowed to work out in the afternoon, when the A's were carded for their final warmup. Naturally, this request was turned down. That's what he wanted.

Back he went to his men with his story.

"The A's are giving us the works, boys," he bellowed. "They're supposed to let us work out at Shibe Park but they refuse. I expected they would. They're scared stiff. Well, what do we care? We'll show the so-and-so's tomorrow that we don't need to be in shape to lick them."

The anger over the fancied wrong made the Braves invincible.

Then, at the close of the third game, finding himself with three straight victories and anxious for the honor of being the first pilot to sweep a series, Stallings decided on another little speech.

"You must win today and become the first club to gain the championship in four games or we all stand to lose the series' profits," he warned his players just before the fourth tilt. "I haven't secured transportation or made any hotel arrangements in Philadelphia for tomorrow. If you lose we won't be on hand for the fifth game. It will be forfeited to the A's and we'll all be fined.

That, of course, was so much hokum. He would have had them in Philly the next afternoon, had it been necessary, and if he had failed, it would have been nothing out of the players' pockets, though it's unlikely that many of them realized it.

Soldiers Field was a deserted spot today. In another week thousands of fans will begin their Saturday trek over the river to the Stadium. But with the exception of a few cross country runners doing their paces in trunks and spikes, it was a lonely spot, as Harvard's gridmen enjoyed their first day of rest since the opening of fall practice.

But while the football players were taking their ease, it was a busy day for the Harvard coaches. For [illegible] last night and early this morning the Crimson coaches [illegible] were rushing to catch [illegible] parts of New England [illegible] expedition.

West Point and Dartmouth are the teams feared above all others by Casey. The Cadets are reported to be much less powerful this year than last fall. But Casey is not to be deceived by rumors. Dartmouth with the material on hand at Hanover is expected to have its best team in recent years. Whatever develops at either camp Casey intends to be prepared for the worst.

CASEY WORRIED

At the end of two weeks practice three sophomores still retain their first team ranking and none of them appears in any danger of being removed. Fran Lane [illegible] regular right halfback [illegible] temporarily has been [illegible] to fullback in the absence of Captain Dean. George Gulian [illegible] regular right guard and [illegible] established at [illegible] end.

HUSKIES HAVE LINE TONNAGE

Northeastern has a good ton of tackle material to toss at St. Anselm's when the latter returns to Boston on Saturday of next week to open the Huskies' season.

Six of the 10 candidates for Husky tackle positions tip the beams at better than 200 pounds and each of them is in fine condition for the opening whistle.

The list of tackles and their weights: Milbrandt, 218; Bergamini, 210; Chrusz, 192; George Dean, 183; William Garlick, 204; Ed Govoni, 194; Norm Grandberg, 212; B[illegible] Redfield, 180; Sumner [illegible], 206, and Art Crooke, 209.

Pete Yeskenas of Norwood has been shifted from tackle to guard, thereby strengthening that department. He will join the ranks of Dolph Chaplick, Ed Urban and Joe Hill, present occupants of the guard berths.

BOSTON ELEVEN OPENS AT HOME

The Boston pro soccer eleven will make its first home appearance of the season today at Lincoln Park with the fast Fall River United eleven providing the opposition in a New England League game.

The Boston team opened its league campaign with a victory over the New Bedford Defenders last Sunday at New Bedford and Manager Jimmy MacDonald and his blue and gold eleven are confident that they will keep their slate clean by taking the United into camp.

In the opening game a quartet of youngsters, Bob Green, [illegible] Ben Fash[illegible] and [illegible] were the real heroes of the Hub team's victory and they will [illegible] against the United.

[illegible]

Fred Morley, the old Fall River star, is managing the United eleven and he is sure to field an eleven that will make the Hub team step for the entire 90 minutes.

The kick off is slated for 3 p. m. and Tom Freeman of Everett will referee with Archie Hart and Dave Buchanan assisting him on the lines.

The only other game carded today will have the Pawtucket and Thornton Victoria elevens battling at Coats Field, Pawtucket.

To-morrow the league has three games scheduled in which the Quincy Canadians will meet the Thornton Vics at Thornton, Fall River Rovers and New Bedford Defenders clash at Fall River and New Bedford Tessers and Fairlawn Rovers at New Bedford.

The Boston and District league has six games carded tomorrow which will whet the appetite of local fans with the feature at Sullivan Square, Charleston, between the Boston Celtics and Medford United.

The other games will have Corinthians and Bunker Hill Celtics at Revere, Swedish F. C. and Andover United at Andover, Beacon A. C. and Quincy Point at Everett, Dorchester Waverly and Clan McGregor at South Boston and Carsons and Riversides at Lynn.

Lesley Cup Victory Up to Guilford

By BILL GRIMES

Dixie, Que., Sept. 30—Upon the physical condition of big Jesse Guilford hinges Massachusetts' chances of winning its first away-from-home Lesley Cup matches.

Entering the final round today the Bay Staters were trailing Quebec by a margin of 1½ points, with the Metropolitan District 6½ points in arrears, and Pennsylvania, the defending champion, hopelessly out of the running with but 15.

After taking all three points in the Scotch foursome yesterday morning while paired with Howard [illegible] Guilford, in attempting to [illegible] first tee [illegible] single matches out of the proviso [illegible] refused [illegible] all three points and was ordered to bed [illegible] he returned to the clubhouse.

Francis Ouimet stole the show yesterday, the two-time winner of the United States amateur championship. After breaking even in the Scotch foursomes with Ray Van Arsdale as his partner, Ouimet went out on his own in the p. m. and took Gordie Taylor, Kanawaki, ex-amateur titlist of Canada, C. E. Bacon, Metropolitan District, and Max Marston, the unsuccessful finalist at Kenwood, over the jumps. Ouimet wound up his matches with Marston and Bacon on the 16th green and one hole later disposed of Taylor.

Bobby Knowles, The Country Club, was the only Bay State player to emerge with a clean slate. Knowles was not played in the Scotch foursomes which, on the basis of the afternoon showing was poor judgment of politics, but in the singles gave Milthau, New York, Fuller, Quebec and his summer clubmate, G. Colkert Caner, the "business."

Johnny Nies and Phil Simons defeated McLeod and Milthau, New York, and Walker and Savard, Quebec, handily in the foursomes and the former picked up two points in the p. m. as did Fred Hannon after he and Billy McPhail had dropped two points in the morning.

Unless Guilford is at top form the outcome favors Quebec, a well balanced aggregation, which is expected to be stronger today through a couple of replacements.

UNBEATEN HIGH TEAMS GIVEN SECOND HARD TEST ON GRIDIRON

50 GAMES PLAY TO CAPACITY CROWDS

By BILL CONNELL

[illegible] football title bait lured half a [illegible] prominent elevens into battle [illegible] today as the scholastic grid race entered its second lap.

Undefeated teams [illegible] today for many of this select class were tossed into action against dangerous teams. Malden, Everett, Brockton, Salem, Lynn Classical, Arlington and Haverhill among others risked perfect records.

Malden's [illegible] to Somerville was due to draw one of the largest crowds. With Malden the favorite against Charley Dickerman's [illegible] which [illegible] first game of the year. Malden had the [illegible] vantage of a win over [illegible] to its credit. Southpaw Joe Kelley, brilliant passer and pivot [illegible] a strong Malden backfield [illegible] a powerful line [illegible] good be to direct his team [illegible]

EASY FOR EVERETT

Everett likewise unbeaten [illegible] expect too tough a time when it entertained Malo. For Everett's Joe Schwerdt at quarter, Joe [illegible] Sam Gentile and John [illegible] starting backfield [illegible] too much for the visitors.

New Bedford Vocational [illegible] into Salem offered the home team a very tough afternoon though the Witches were favored. Bill Peckham, quarterback, and his well-trained mates seemed to have too much football savvy for the New Bedford team, which, however, was primed for a stirring bid.

Waltham made ready to entertain Maynard with few of the local fans appreciating the power of the invaders. Johnny O'Leary, a brilliant back, carried the hope of Maynard folk who expected him to be the sparkplug in a winning surge. Waltham, the natural favorite, was in for trouble.

GLOUCESTER AT LYNN

A powerful Gloucester team roamed to Lynn Stadium to tackle Classical, which Coach Bill Joyce was forced to revamp with several of his best players out because of the celebration of Yom Kippur. The Lynn eleven possibly was to see its crown hopes fade in the duel.

Arlington played host to Winchester and rated a [illegible] selection with the first home backfield of McLean, Weidau, Lane and Madden dazzling the foes.

Haverhill was very confident this morning as it prepared for the attack of Rindge Tech. But the latter, after losing to Waltham in the initial start, was on edge and here had a chance to stage one of the real upsets of the day.

In other Merrimac Valley games Wakefield went to Lawrence for an excellent scrap. Concord rambled to Lowell and Amesbury stepped into Haverhill to tackle St. James [illegible]

Cambridge Latin [illegible] to Newton for a Suburban League opener [illegible] provided a [illegible] encounter [illegible] both [illegible] after first game in which the Cantabs tied St. James and Newton trailed Arlington.

QUINCY GOES AGAIN

Quincy very much [illegible] up with the home residents commencing to back the team after a long period of lethargy, had the weight and a fine passing attack set for its visit to Melrose.

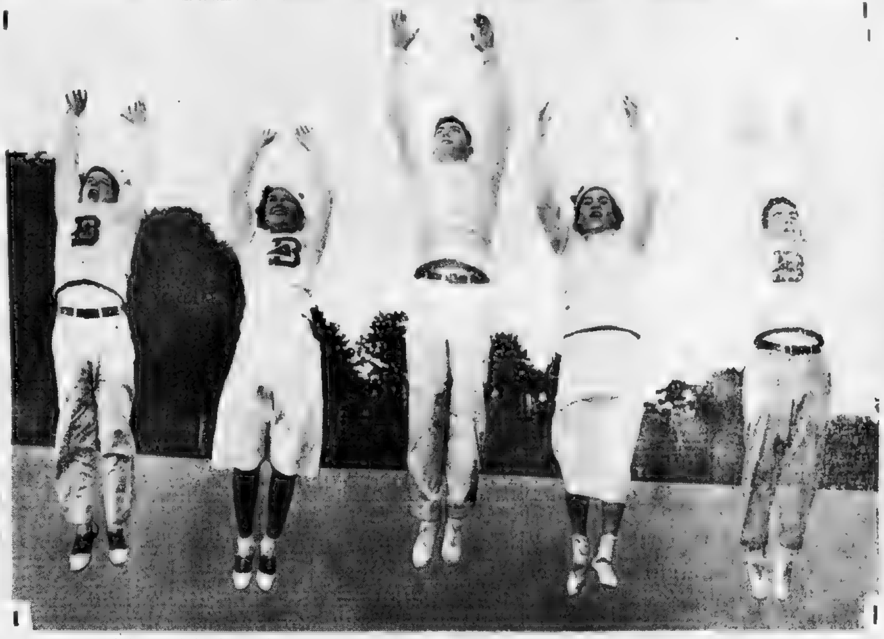
Provided the [illegible] sustained from Leominster had not taken all the heart out of the Quincy eleven, it had a chance here to redeem itself after the slaughter of last week.

Athol, developing smoothly, had nothing but woe ahead in its trip to Leominster. The home team being so very, very good that few clubs in the state would stand a chance with it today.

Stoneham at Woburn, Weymouth at Belmont, Noble and Greenough at Dedham, Danvers at Marblehead, Gardner at Norwood, Taunton at Natick, Keith at Swampscott and St. Peter's at Peabody were among the better games.

Taken by and large, another Saturday's schedule qualified to win praise from the most critical school fan.

All Together, Now, Comes Call -:- As Cheer Leaders Take to Air



This beautiful united effort of the cheer leaders at the Brookline High-Winthrop High game at Brookline Field failed to rouse the home team to any victory rush as it trailed 6 to 0. But the leaders drew some snappy roaring from the fans. And why not, with such a splendid display of directing ability.

MacLean Goes to Mat in Arena Revival

By DAVID F. EGAN

McPherson is out! MacLean is in!

It was exclusively announced in the American several days ago by your exclusive announcer that Steve McPherson's time at the Arena had expired. It is a habit of the good old American to [illegible] and blurt the truth about things.

McPherson was a [illegible] success at the Arena. I mean [illegible] that he packed the house [illegible] Wednesday night at [illegible] prices. But he got fresh with the [illegible] trust which [illegible] Herr [illegible] himself, with a couple of bochs, mein herr, and so Meinherr Bowser dumped him neatly.

Prof. McPherson [illegible] I am led to [illegible] ended in [illegible] after the Bowser dumping. He [illegible] received [illegible] that port of [illegible] The [illegible] gave him a notice of 24 [illegible] [illegible] that Mr. McPherson [illegible]

ALEC TO THE BREACH

[illegible] Alex MacLean [illegible] the [illegible] the Arena [illegible] MacLean [illegible] [illegible] He promoted when promoters in New England were [illegible] a match between Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney at Braves Field for the Crosscup-Pishon Post.

It was Alex MacLean who saved the boxing racket from complete downfall. He was matchmaker at the Garden in the worst period that boxing had ever known. He had the courage to [illegible] Primo Carnera and Jim Maloney for a Garden bout.

You [illegible] experts [illegible] blow [illegible] The [illegible] who [illegible] and those who puffed their cheek were [illegible] puffing [illegible] with time and a half overtime.

All the experts, with tongues in cheek, predicted that Carnera would swamp Maloney. The experts were wrong in a body. Alex MacLean had seen to that. He had provided for the fight being on the level.

TURNS TO MAT

So the veteran promoter, who saved boxing from the Indians, will set his rugged face towards wrestling. MacLean has promoted wrestling in the past both for the Crosscup-Pishon Post and the Rollaway A. A. in Revere.

He knows his rasslers almost as well as he knows his boxers and you and your gal friends are going to see as much action as Steve McPherson ever provided.

For his main bout next Wednesday he has signed Al Pierotti, the Everett school teacher, and Bull Martin. They have engaged in skirmishes in the past. They have indulged in [illegible] brawls. The Bull was a [illegible] and Al was a referee and [illegible] required to set the Bull off.

SHREWD SHOWMAN

Your correspondent does [illegible] know what plans MacLean has for the Arena but [illegible] does know that [illegible] the shrewdest [illegible] man in the business. McPherson [illegible] [illegible] Leo Numa [illegible] to meet [illegible] [illegible] worth to [illegible]

Jiu Jitsu Star on Mechanics Mat

A leading exponent of the jiu-jitsu has been signed by Promoter Charlie Gordon for a special bout at Mechanics Building on next Tuesday evening. He is Oka Mitsaura who appeared here last some three years ago. He is to meet Pete Magolli.

The main bout will feature Fred Bruno and Archie Campbell. Mephisto and George Dussette are down for the semifinal.

Dance Planned for Presidential Golf

As an added attraction to the first golf tournament to be held at Presidential Country Club, Wayland, Oct. 12, 13 and 14, the committee has decided to hold a special holiday ball the night of the opening day of the competition.

Invitations have been sent to Herbert Jaques, Charles Cross and other golf potentates, and most of the professionals and their wives, including Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sarazen and Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Farrell, will attend.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

MIKE JACOBS of New [illegible] about how the pul[illegible] anybody else in Ame[illegible] coming world's series [illegible]

"I have handled tickets for every kind of a sporting and theatrical event," said Mike during a recent chat in Philadelphia, "and I find people want to see the Giants play the Senators. The public tired of the Yankees. Their victory surge became monotonous. The Giants offer a brand new attraction. I have had no difficulty getting premiums on tickets for the series. I am selling tickets for the three New York games to each customer.

Mr. Boston

"I got a big [illegible] for tickets for Joe Cook's [illegible] York opening. It is a good show, but a year ago you would be shot if you asked that kind of money for a ticket. It is easy to get $10 to $15 for good theater tickets at openings.

The theater is a bit different from sports. [illegible] people going to openings and they wouldn't miss one on a [illegible] though they have to [illegible] to $25 for a ticket.

Tex Rickard once told me that it is always [illegible] to [illegible] the first ten rows for a heavyweight championship fight. If Rickard had lived, he planned to charge $100 for such tickets. And I think he would have got them.

"I got $100 for tickets [illegible] the first five rows for [illegible] of the Dempsey-Tunney bouts, the Dempsey-Carpentier match and the Dempsey-Sharkey battle. Rickard charged $50 for ringside pews at the Dempsey-Carpentier match, $40 for the Demp[illegible] Tunney go at Chicago and [illegible] for the Sharkey-Dempsey bout.

People like it to be known they can pay high prices for tickets. This is why they will pay as much as they do for New York theatrical openings.

"I think business conditions are picking up. When [illegible] real had a year ago, nobody [illegible] pay a premium on tickets. [illegible] like New York for the big shows. The other towns are all [illegible]

Mrs. Northcross

[illegible]

The American Advertiser's [illegible] is a week of every[illegible] [illegible] brides, [illegible] mothers of [illegible] families [illegible] for [illegible] who cooks want to learn [illegible] what pla[illegible] meals for a family of two or [illegible] more [illegible] of new [illegible] cooker and homemaking [illegible] a model kitchen.

In the kitchen [illegible] tested homemaking crew will be led by Mrs. Northcross [illegible] of all each se[illegible] to the women of Greater Boston.

Doors will open at one o'clock and lectures will begin at two. These daily [illegible] will include discussions of new food products which thereafter will be available through your favorite grocers and markets. New wares for the dining table, new ideas for serving, entertaining, planning menus and special occasions also will be discussed.

"We could do no better than to pattern our behaviors after that of the first lady of the land—Mrs. Roosevelt," said Mrs. Northcross. "Simple meals, carefully planned and well cooked are the fare at the White House. Why not make them the rule in our own homes."

In addition to the daily [illegible] valuable prizes will be awarded each day, including a Crawford electric range, a Kel[illegible] refrigerator, Glenwood gas range, [illegible] electric [illegible] roaster and many other articles.

Homemakers planning to attend the sessions are urged to be on hand when the doors open as each year the classes are filled to capacity when the lecture starts at two o'clock.

JEWRY CROWDS SYNAGOGUES

Until sundown [illegible] the Jewish residents of Boston today observed Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, in the more than [illegible] temples and synagogues throughout the city.

The observance started at sundown last night and was followed by solemn services of fasting and prayer.

Special services for children was on today's schedule at Temple [illegible] with Rabbi Harry [illegible] in charge for the three-hour period from noon until 3. Services for adults were placed in charge of Rabbi [illegible] Cohon.

The day opened at [illegible] on various places of worship [illegible] without [illegible] ing the day, includ[illegible] the [illegible] memor[illegible] service [illegible] have died since last year.

New York, Sept. 30 (INS)—Frederick Faust, [illegible] you never heard of him although he is the most prolific writer in the world, is here today for a three months' [illegible] before returning to his villa in Florence, Italy, where he has been turning out annually two million words of copy for magazines [illegible] for ten years.

His holiday will consist of [illegible] publishers, movie magnates and literary agents and drama[illegible] not a three month [illegible] of [illegible].

Faust writes under dozens of pen names for all classes of [illegible] and it is not uncommon for him to have four stories in the same issue of a magazine under as many different noms de plume.

Japan to Protest Koo's League Action

Tokyo, Sept. 30.—A foreign office spokesman said today that an official protest to the Chinese government would be made against the alleged anti-Japanese activities at Geneva of Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese minister to France.

Objection to Dr. Koo's activities at the league assembly was based, the spokesman said, on Japan's belief they were injurious to what was described as the newly-developing Sino-Japanese amity.

Addressing the league yesterday, the Chinese minister asserted 'ominous clouds are rising on the Far Eastern horizon.'

GIRL CHEERED AS LILY BLOOMS

Little Margaret Ann Wells, five, of 16 Quint av., Cambridge, whose [illegible] smiling this Saturday morning.

It's on Saturdays that Margaret Ann with her mother goes to [illegible] Daddy Wells' grave.

This morning, though, was different on account of the lily.

Mrs. Anna Wells, Margaret Ann's mother, bought her the lily, pot and all, last Easter time. Margaret Ann listened carefully while her mother told her how the big fragrant white flower blossoming up out of the dark earth every springtime gives courage to sad people by reminding them that winters and troubles don't last forever.

Both Mother Wells and Margaret Ann were in need of courage those lonely March and April days. The [illegible] helped.

A year's a long time, though, when you're five years old. Margaret Ann couldn't bear to wait. So she didn't say a word to Mother Wells but she nursed the lily plant as if it were a tiny, cuddly human body.

So now of course you've guessed the secret. Last Sunday, when Margaret Ann and her mother came down stairs there [illegible] a great big bud on the [illegible].

Yesterday the [illegible] itself had opened and Ma[illegible] told her mother the [illegible].

"It's for daddy's grave, it grew again," she said.

Why not just use stock shots of the Cave of the Winds?

Senator Long went through the script and eliminated all sequences that he considered annoying.

MARKET VIEWS IN STATE ST.

Hayden Stone & Co.—Attention now is centered on the question of monetary vs credit inflation, with a virtual disregard for the moment of business conditions. The period of inflation psychology apparently has come to an end. While this may be, and indeed is, something of a damper on market speculation, it could not be expected to continue indefinitely.

Elmer H. Bright & Co.—In comparison with July prices the better class of securities have fared worse than the more speculative ones. This showing is probably due to the fear of the possibility of some unsound inflation the adoption of which has recently been openly advocated. The feeling is strong, however, that government officials do not favor this fallacious type of cure for business illness.

Josephthal & Co.—If stocks are again weak this morning an increase in selling pressure may be anticipated from trading quarters but if prices hold one would seem to be justified in making moderate purchases for a turn.

REVALUING OF DOLLAR SURE, SAYS HANEY

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Sept. 30. There has [illegible] been considerable talk [illegible] the dollar. This [illegible] leading to [illegible] of our money pre- [illegible] a gold basis and has [illegible] to those speculators who count on inflation.

First let [illegible] note that we have [illegible] "devalued" the dollar since we have cut it loose from gold and reduced its purchasing power.

Therefore what is really meant is to revalue the dollar, by putting it back on a gold basis. Almost certainly the revaluation would be on a lower basis than formerly. In short the revaluation would reflect the amount of devaluation which exists.

The dollar has already fallen about 35 per cent in value. The dollar price of gold has risen over 50 per cent and commodity prices in general are much higher.

That there will eventually be a revaluation of the dollar accompanied by a return to a gold standard I am sure. But I do not think it at all probable that this step will be taken in the near future.

It seems certain to come some day because the treasury and the reserve banks have a large quantity of gold as an asset.

The gold standard has great advantages over any other known monetary standard and

Other nations, after devaluing their money have always revalued in terms of gold.

My reason for believing that the government will not revalue soon, but will feel compelled to wait for a long while before taking this step, are as follows:

First, there is the very practical political fact that the administration now in power is definitely committed to the project of raising prices and the further fact that prices are still much below the promised level.

If the dollar were to be revalued now at a figure which would not be seriously disturbing, there is no reason to think that prices could be raised as promised.

Second and more fundamentally important the nation is in no condition to stand the revaluing operation at present. Many developments are required before the dollar can be revalued on a sound and sustained basis.

There would be no sense in revaluing (in terms of gold) unless we could resume a gold standard. It would be meaningless to say that [illegible] base as 12 grains of gold instead of the old base of 23.22 grains unless dollars were freely interchangeable with gold.

But a gold standard cannot work well enough under present conditions to make it probable that any important nation which is off gold will go back on.

England, for example, has wisely refused to return to the gold standard, and her responsible leaders say that she will not until certain conditions are restored.

What, then, are the conditions essential to a return to gold? (Note them well, for until we can safely revalue the dollar in terms of gold, the final "devaluation" is not likely to occur). They are the following:

The final settlement of inter-governmental debts.

The real balancing of budgets in all important nations so that their domestic currencies may be stabilized.

A much freer movement of goods and service in international trade.

The ability and willingness of creditor nations to make sound commercial loans to other nations and

These are the missing links between us and a gold standard. Until much progress is made toward supplying them we are not likely to revalue the dollar. So continued financial uncertainty and a fluctuating dollar are in prospect for some time.

Fore River Plant Hiring More Men

Liverpool Cotton Prices Are Steady

Liverpool, Sept. 30 (INS)—There was a fair demand for spot cotton today with prices steady. Receipts totaled 7000 bales, including no American. Futures held narrowly throughout, with October opening at 5.41d, and closing at 5.39d; January opening at 5.45d, and closing at 5.44d; March, 5.49d, and 5.48d; and May 5.52d, and 5.51d.

Observers Think Market Position Is Much Improved

By HUGH F. BRADSHAW

Competent observers in the financial district are inclined to view the week's stock market action as a much postponed purging. Wild and airy ideas of what prices should do to discount inflation are being forgotten and traders are paying attention to the more sober business of final half year earnings prospects. The market superstructure will depend primarily on these.

The inflation issue unfortunately is still left in an uncertain state. The practical benefits to be derived from an intelligent middle-of-the-road reflationary course apparently are not realized in the high places. The share market, it is now admitted on many sides, has discounted a cheaper dollar. Without some reflationary step, it is hard for it to hold its head up.

MARKET ITSELF BEST GUIDE

When the financial atmosphere is so saturated with uncertainty it serves to emphasize the wisdom of following the tape. The market will unravel its own story if given half a chance. Those who travel afield for cues to future price movements usually come to a sad end. There is no substitute for tape action.

As matters market-wise now stand it appears prices are making a border line decision on the potency of those forces campaigning for higher levels. Weak longs are largely eliminated and a short account of fair proportions is building up. Support made its appearance at logical levels and higher active prices seem to be promised.

A few more sessions should supply a definite answer to market problems. The danger spot is the 90-92 area on the 30 industrial index. A break through this would be a serious affair and just about put the damper on near term bull operations. In fact, nearby resistance should hold above 94.

United Shoe on the Boston board manages to stay around the year's best price . . . Despite the sad stories one hears about earnings cut through increased manufacturing expenses . . . This supposedly due to demand for machinery under the NRA which the company could not care for without investing in more equipment.

Notes: Bucyrus Erie common around 8 is suggested a low priced favorite . . . So too with Chicago Pneumatic Tool at same price . . . A kind word is still heard for General Refractory . . . Louisville & Nashville is gossiped about favorably in circles usually long of it in the fall . . . 41-43 is indicated buying level.

Aviation issues have certainly faded into the background. Every boardroom used to have its bull on United Aircraft. Now, however, the stock is hardly noticed and it is probably being accumulated just under 30. The same story seems true of Douglas and Aviation Corp.

Canadian Financing Gains Over Year Ago

The total sales of new Canadian issues for the nine months ended September 30, 1933, amounted to $298,169,559, according to the Dominion Securities Corporation, as compared with $27[illegible] for the corresponding nine months of 1932.

The financing during the [illegible] month was very light with total issues amounting to only $1,134,731 as compared with over $71,000,000 in September, 1932.

CARRY OVER IN U. S. COTTON IS SMALLER

World carryover of American cotton August 1 is estimated at 11,597,000 bales, against 12,961,000 the like date last year, says Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

That is much less than expected a few months ago and somewhat [illegible] than expected until world consumption and mill stock figures became available the first part of September. This year's carryover figure, while 1,364,000 less than a year earlier, is still much larger than any other year on record.

World consumption of American cotton in 1932-33 season was reported by International Federation at 14,316,000 running bales, against 12,316,000 in 1931-32, and was 3,259,000 bales larger than consumption in 1930-31.

World mill consumption of all cotton showed a material increase over 1931-32, at 24,332,000 running bales, against 22,319,000 in 1931-32. This was the largest total mill consumption since 1929-30.

The increase of 1,851,000 bales in consumption of American cotton from 1931-32 to 1932-33 accounted for most of the increase in consumption of all cotton.

While domestic mills have been operating at near record levels the past three months, stocks of cotton goods at mills have shown little tendency to accumulate, says the report, the heavy output having been shipped into distributing channels.

With conditions Sept. 1 indicating a domestic crop of 12,414,000 bales and world carryover of American cotton placed at 11,597,000 present indications are that world supply of American cotton the 1933-34 season will be around 24,000,000 bales, against 25,963,000 in 1932-33.

Domestic cotton exports in August were 531,000 bales, against 4[illegible]2,000 in August, 1932, and 211,000 in August, 1931.

Kelvinator Corp. Closes Good Year

Kelvinator Corp. this week closes a very satisfactory fiscal year. Final net, after year-end charge offs, is expected to be around $900,000 or 80 cents per share on the 1,124,000 shares outstanding. Such earnings would compare with 9 cents per share in 1932 and $1.61 in 1931. This record was made in the face of the March bank troubles while on March 15 last prices were cut to the lowest point on record. As a result of this price cut it was necessary to rebate to dealers on all products in their hands.

Dividend Changes on Upside Number 21

Cuts in Tax Rate Rule in Bay State

Although only four Massachusetts cities have reported increases in tax rates for 1933, more than 100 towns have raised rates from $1 to $20. Of 253 cities and towns which have reported, 134 show a decrease, 103 an increase and 15 no change.

Canadian Rail Strike Averted by Premier

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY
Noted Economist and Financial Writer

Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 30. A threatened strike on Canada's transcontinental railway systems is to be averted. Taking the ground that a step of such proportions would paralyze the country's economic life and destroy all prospects of recovery, Premier Bennett, it is understood, has persuaded the railway companies to withdraw their proposed 10 per cent wage cut.

A public statement explaining the decision to come may be expected within the next few weeks. In the meantime the employees, engaged in counting a strike ballot, [illegible] postpone any decision in [illegible]

[illegible] together from economic [illegible] the [illegible] intervention to prevent a strike was to some extent influenced by the action of President Roosevelt preventing a similar wage cut in the United States. Failure of the Canadian cabinet to interfere would, it was felt, be contrasted unfavorably with the attitude of President Roosevelt, with consequent dangerous political repercussions for Premier Bennett and his ministry.

A further factor influencing the situation was the improved showing of the railways. There has been no spectacular increase in either gross or net earnings but a steady and steady improvement in both, added to much more substantial economies, has put both railways upon a much sounder financial basis.

The British high commissioner's complaint that the Ottawa agreements are bringing more benefit to Canada than to England was repeated in Ottawa this week by Sir Herbert Samuel.

This, a sore point with Premier Bennett, is not likely to help the case of British textile interests, now appearing before the Canadian tariff board in an attempt to show that tariffs on British textiles should be still further reduced.

RALLY AT CLOSE UNDER LEAD OF METALS

New York, Sept. 30—Stocks rallied at the close of today's trading on the New York Stock Exchange under the leadership of the metal shares. The list had previously sold at new lows for the current move. Volume picked up as the rally started and closing prices were generally above previous final prices.

Continuation of the selling pressure in U. S. Steel, American Telephone and the rail issues was responsible for the earlier reaction. Losses ran to 5 points at one time in the repeal issues.

Oils and coppers alone showed marked resistance and worked higher in early dealings, but gave way with the rest of the list in selling flurries.

Utilities were helped at first by payment of the regular dividend by Southern California Edison, but, as the general market slipped, Consolidated Gas broke to a new low for the year.

Air Reduction was down 4 points. Setbacks of 2 or more points were recorded for J. I. Case, American Can, American Telephone, American Commercial Alcohol and du Pont.

Point or more recessions came in U. S. Steel, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Allied Chemical, Atchison, Auburn, Brooklyn-Manhattan, Chrysler, Libby-Owens and Ward. Ingersoll-Rand was off 5.

Foreign exchanges gave up some of their substantial gains of yesterday. The British pound sterling slipped ⅛ of a cent to $4.75¼ for cables, the French franc was off .01¼ of a cent at 5.98¾ cents and other gold currencies were slightly easier.

While Wall Street was attempting to interpret the national fiscal situation, financial circles expressed satisfaction over the announcement from Hyde Park that the President had approved an agreement which, it is hoped, will end strikes in the bituminous coal fields of Western Pennsylvania involving 75,000 miners and 25,000 other employes of the iron and steel companies.

At the same time the operations of the National Recovery program and their effect upon the consuming public were being watched closely by market analysts.

The report of the Bureau of Labor statistics, showing that retail food prices had fallen 1 per cent from Aug. 29, to Sept. 12, was of considerable interest in that it was thought to indicate the evening up of consumption, production and wage increases. There had been some fears that food prices might get out of hand in the general NRA advances.

REICH AGAINST INFLATION

By JOSEPH BARBER, JR.
Universal Service Special Cable

Berlin, Sept. 30—Germany's official stand on the question of inflation was expressed in a speech at Munich by Minister of Economics Schmitt. He said:

"It is unthinkable that we should attempt to fight the depression by a policy of inflation. In the first place, there is nobody in the German government who could promise the success of such a dose of morphine."

These remarks, backed up by the known attitude of President of the Reichsbank Schacht are allaying rumors current in financial circles here that the general economic council is considering more radical measures to relieve the pressing situation.

It is pointed out that Germany is adopting an opposite policy toward recovery from the United States, attempting to stimulate production and consumption without altering the price level and wage scale, although a 40-hour week is already in effect in some branches of industry.

Virginia-Carolina Proxy Warning Out

George S. Kemp, who has served as a director of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. for the past 12 months, is asking holders of the 7 per cent preference stock not to sign proxies for the annual meeting of stockholders until they are supplied with more information about the purposes of the meeting. It is understood the proposed retirement of 85,000 shares of the stock will result in control of the company passing out of the hands of prior preference stockholders, who, so long as $10,000,000 of the stock is outstanding, have the right to elect a majority of the board.

Wools End Unchanged

Gillette Safety Razor Orders Show Big Gain

More than usual interest is likely to be shown in the third quarter earnings report of the Gillette Safety Razor Company, due to the company's bold stroke last month in drastically reducing the price of its blades. Although the new price policy has produced such an influx of blade orders as to necessitate a night shift and doubling the number of employes, it does not necessarily follow that an immediate gain in net profits will result.

Gillette's price to the trade for blades prior to August 28 was $6 a hundred and it has been cut to $3.68 a hundred, less certain discounts in both cases. This is a reduction of about 40 per cent, and the company has undertaken to make up this loss to dealers and retailers on their stocks on hand at the time of the announcement.

Dealers will receive a credit in new merchandise for the amount due. If this entire adjustment is charged against third quarter earnings, it will, of course, have a material adverse effect on the financial showing for the period.

Gillette's move was obviously designed to recapture volume lost to manufacturers of other low-priced blades. These manufacturers, many of them in weak financial condition, have not followed the leading company's example in cutting prices.

Gillette, with its $7,500,000 of cash and securities, is much better able than most of its competitors to make the temporary sacrifice attendant upon a drastic price reduction in order to build future volume.

Formerly retail prices for Gillette blades covered a rather wide range, say from 35 cents to 50 cents for five, depending upon the policy of the particular store. In the announcement of its price reduction, the Gillette company "authorized" retailers to sell 5 blades for 25 cents, or 10 for 49. These prices are being rather generally adhered to in the retail trade.

In the six months to June 30 Gillette earned after all charges and preferred dividends 73 cents a share on its 1,998,769 common shares, of which the second quarter produced 44½ cents and the first quarter 28½ cents. With inflation in the air, the second quarter is believed to have felt the influence of hurried buying in anticipation of a price advance.

The 40 per cent cut actually decided upon was in striking contrast to the general trend of prices and was the more surprising in that it followed the company's adherence to the NRA program of hours and wages.

Shoe Salesmen Are After Late Business

Shoe and Leather Reporter says new shoe orders for later cutting are reported at a low level. Sales representatives are pushing for business to be handled during October, November and December. Efforts to procure this business will be intensified after next week's style conference. Shoe buyers show a spirit of co-operation in keeping with NRA developments, and are checking the differences between labor costs at time orders were placed and time of shipments. Business, rather than sentiment or patriotic fervor, continues to govern their actions.

Men's Wear Stores Placing Orders

Men's wear stores are making preparations for their most active holiday season in several years, it was indicated in New York. Substantial orders have been placed for shirts, neckwear, robes, hosiery and novelties in all price ranges. Merchants feel that the full benefits of the NRA program will have been felt by the beginning of the Christmas season.

53 P. C. Premium on French Bonds

Government of the French Republic will pay October 1 interest on the 20-year 5½ per cent coupon gold bonds, due April 1, 1937, at the New York office of J. P. Morgan & Co. in U. S. currency at the dollar equivalent of French francs 25.5171122 per dollar of face value of coupon upon the basis of their buying rate for exchange on Paris at time of presentation. Coupons are also payable at the Morgan Paris office at 25.171122 francs to the dollar. Payment of coupons at the above rate means a premium to the holder of about 53⅛ cents on each dollar of interest.

Copper Buying Is Quiet

Copper buying was quiet in the domestic market and better abroad. In the foreign market there was quite a spread in price, but the buying was in better volume than recently.

Electrolytic for domestic shipment was nine cents a pound, delivered, to the end of 1933. European destinations were at 8.05 to 8.23 cents a pound, c. i. f. Hamburg, Havre and London.

N. E. Steamship to Cut Rates

New England Steamship Company will reduce passenger rates on its vessels operating between New York, Providence, Fall River and Newport, effective October 1. Average reduction will be about 10 per cent.

Associated System Output Up

For the week ended September 23, Associated Gas & Electric System reports electric output, excluding sales to other utilities, of 54,240,809 k. w. h. and an increase of 9.7 per cent above the same week of last year.

American Foreign Net Is $6,223,121

American & Foreign Power Co., Inc., reports for 12 months ended March 31 net of $6,233,121 after taxes, interest, depreciation, subsidiary preferred dividend requirements and other charges, but before taking into account the exchange losses or profits on working capital in foreign currencies. This compares with net of $13,975,858 for 12 months ended March 31, 1932.

BOSTON SHARES ARE MOSTLY LOWER

Leading shares were mostly lower in today's short sessions of trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. Changes were largely of the fractional variety. Rail issues were inclined to show a mixed trend, while utilities were soft.

Atchison was improved fractionally. Maine Central preferred was down a point from its last closing price. New Haven sagged almost 2 points from last night's close.

Edison Electric dropped almost 2 points and American Telephone was off about a point. General Electric dropped a minor fraction. Copper shares eased with Kennecott dropping over a point and Anaconda a minor fraction.

United Fruit, Gillette and Eastern Gas & Fuel were at fractional higher levels. United Shoe slumped a point and Eastern Steamship second preferred was off more than 2 points.

Tinkham Discounts Jap Manchukuo Rule

Peiping, China, Sept. 30—Despite agricultural and financial improvement and good progress in restoring public order Congressman George H. Tinkham of Massachusetts says he does not believe the time is right for American recognition of Manchukuo.

Mr. Tinkham described the Japanese as possessing more military ability than aptitude for administration and colonization.

Petitions Request Dennis Light Fund

Dennis, Sept. 30—Many residents of this town have signed a petition for a special town meeting to appropriate more funds for lighting, being dissatisfied with the prospects of lightless nights until next March.

The petition calls for a meeting 10 days after it is filed.

Japanese Rayon Growth Notable With Big Gains

Washington, Sept. 30—Expansion of the rayon industry is one of the notable features in the Japanese industrial setup, American Trade Commissioner P. P. Steintorf states in a report to the Commerce Department. Productive capacity, he points out, increased from 96 metric tons a day at the end of March to 126 tons at the close of the June quarter.

Construction plans now definitely approved or in actual process of execution are expected to add about 40 metric tons to the potential daily capacity, bringing the total to 166 metric tons per day. This will mean an aggregate yearly capacity of 48,000 metric tons, or more than 100,000,000 pounds.

The Japanese rayon industry has been very profitable for the past two years, and investors appear to believe that this prosperity will continue, according to Steintorf. A large proportion of the output is being exported in the form of cloth.

Japan is in a peculiarly favorable position with respect to such manufacture and export, but some doubt is expressed that foreign shipments of rayon textiles will continue to increase at the rate of the past two years.

Recent reports to the Commerce Department indicate steadily rising receipts of Japanese rayon in various important world markets, particularly Germany.

WORLD'S GOLD OUTPUT UP

Output totaled 1,994,000 fine ounces as compared with 1,992,000 in July and 1,935,000 in June. Production in the United States was 181,000 ounces, a gain of 5000 from July. June output was 143,000 ounces.

Canada's August total was 250,000 ounces, the same as in July, but a decrease of 11,000 ounces from June. South African mines turned out 935,000 ounces, compared with 930,000 in the previous month.

BURROWS MADE NARCOTIC HEAD

For the first time in the history of the Federal Narcotic Bureau, a local man has been named supervisor for the New England district, through the appointment today of Charles A. Burrows of 26 Bellevue st., West Roxbury.

The appointment, probably the most popular ever made in this district, becomes effective Oct. 1. Burrows will succeed Conrad Bradshaw, who died last week.

Burrows is 34 and is a World War veteran who enlisted in the Marine Corps at the age of 15 and served with the famous Second Division, as well as in Haiti and Cuba. He entered the narcotic service in 1928 and his rise has been rapid.

After serving in Washington and Detroit, he came back to Boston and for the past year has been working in co-operation with Daniel Curran, head of the police narcotic squad.

As a result of the alliance, Boston has been freed to a large extent from the narcotic traffic, according to experts.

The new supervisor also paid tribute to William Randolph Hearst for the stand he has taken for years in the war against the "dope" traffic.

"We are all certainly glad to have the support of such a public-spirited citizen," he said, "and the Hearst papers have been a powerful aid in our battle."

Oil Industry Leaders Hopeful on Outlook

Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.

San Francisco, Sept. 30—Western ideas prevailed in the drawing up of the oil code, and accordingly leaders of the industry here are hopeful concerning the new outlook.

Oscar Sutro, vice president of the Standard Oil Co. of California, who has been appointed regional administrator, points out that the outlook for the petroleum industry is better than it has been in years. He said that the code permitted the rational co-operation among competitors in respect to controlling output and price which in former years he had hoped to attain through congressional amendment of the anti-trust laws.

An advocate of price fixing, Mr. Sutro said that the experience of California in the last two years showed that mere mechanical balancing of supply against demand had not prevented price demoralization. The reason for this, he indicated, was that at times demand represented purchases to go into storage, rather than into immediate consumption, and that at other times this oil came out of storage and reduced the demand for current production.

Mr. Sutro would fix the crude price at a figure which would permit a small profit for the marginal producers. He agreed that of necessity that would mean a handsome profit for the more efficient producers, but added that he didn't see how that could be avoided unless you wanted monopoly.

Mr. Sutro indicated that there had already been frequent violations of the code, and that he thought that the government ought to go all the way and license businesses. Then, he suggested, violators could be padlocked for a period. He thought such enforcement more practical than attempting to put violators into jail.

Mr. Sutro's classic speech on price fixing at the code hearing at Washington last month proved a decisive influence.

Mr. Sutro insisted that the industry be given the means it needs to pay the labor bill which all think should be paid and should be put in force.

RECOVERY FOR SEATTLE SEEN UNDER WAY

By M. S. RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 30—Seattle, having ridden the economic storm, is looking forward to a future of accelerated growth. As the nearest United States port to the Orient and as the gateway to Alaska, its people see an opportunity of growing foreign trade.

Like other American centers, Seattle has risen perceptibly above the low point of the depression, but the swing has not yet been as wide as in the industrial East. Neither did it sink so low at the ebb of the depression.

Unemployed labor had an ace in the hole in widespread ownership of homes. Moreover, in the suburbs, many, following the custom of hedging of the French workers, in this area of abundant timber, wood for fuel was near at hand for the needy.

W. H. Parsons, chairman of the First National Bank, the largest financial institution in this section, and chairman of the regional advisory committee of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, told me he thought that the government could be helpful by making six-month and a year loans to industrial and commercial enterprises whose working capital needs to be rehabilitated.

Then such would-be borrowers, he pointed out, would be in position to get loans from commercial banks for current requirements.

Mr. Parsons reported a distinct economic improvement in this section, but said that the demand for commercial credit was still restricted. As a result, he said, his bank is loaded up with loanable funds.

Construction activities, which were paralysed, have begun to revive on a small scale. This district was spared a devastating collapse in residential real estate for the very good reason that there had been no boom for numerous years preceding the depression.

Raymond R. Frazier, president, the Washington Mutual Savings Bank, the chief lending institution of its type in the Northwest, told me proudly that at no stage of the depression had his company ceased to make construction loans.

AUTO INDUSTRY HIT BY STRIKES

Detroit, Sept. 30 (INS)—The motor industry was harassed this week by strikes and labor troubles which were viewed by most authorities as the normal result of a period of adjustment to the NRA.

A strike in the tool and die shops of the motor capital area made about 900 skilled workers idle, and halted work on 1934 models which the industry is now preparing for late fall and winter presentation.

The strike was called by the Mechanics Educational Society, a new independent union, not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The walkout affected not only the die shops of large motor companies, but also the 50 or more small jobbing shops which supply a large share of the dies from which auto bodies, chassis and attachments are stamped.

Ford was believed to be the only large company not greatly affected by the walkout, which, however, involved actual production crews in the Murray body plant, one of Ford's supply concerns.

Officer Promoted Despite Protests

The appointment of Motorcycle Officer Felix A. Dumas as a police sergeant has been confirmed by the Everett Board of Aldermen. Confirmation was made over strong protest of the Everett Post, American Legion, who urged that Patrolman Fred J. Gibson be considered for the post. Gibson ranked second and Dumas third on the civil service list.

Pelicans Clean Fish Out of Lake

El Dorado, Kan., Sept. 30—Lake El Dorado lost a number of fish recently to an aerial foe.

More than 1000 pelicans swooped down and began eating the fish at an alarming rate. The birds returned several times after being chased away.

YOUTH FREED OF KING SOLOMON DEATH, JAILED

John J. Burke, 21, of Seminary rd., Charlestown, who said: "I'm going to be a good boy from now on," after a Suffolk County jury had found him and two companions not guilty of the murder of Charles "King" Solomon, was arrested in the Bronx, New York, early today, as a burglar.

Burke was captured at gunpoint by officers in a radio patrol car after he is alleged to have fled from the apartment of Miss Mary O'Neil, at 401 East 35th st., the Bronx, who telephoned an alarm to police.

When he was taken back to the apartment the girl identified him as the man she had found there when she returned from a theater. As she entered he rushed by, pushing her aside and fled to the street, she said.

Burke was grilled by detectives and insisted a mistake had been made in the identification. He denied he had been in the girl's apartment.

Burke and Frank A. Karlonis and John T. O'Donnell were found not guilty of the Solomon murder last June. James "Skeets" Coyne and John Scully, former South End boxer and John J. Moore of Back Bay are still being sought by police in connection with the Solomon murder.

TO EXCAVATE ANCIENT CITY

The Joint Expedition to Persia of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and the Mrs. William Boyce Thompson Fund of the University Museum, University of Pennsylvania announced today that it would excavate the site of the ancient city of Ray in Persia.

Once the capital city of the ancient Medes, conquered in turn by the Persians, the Macedonians and the Parthians, to be razed finally by Genghis Kahn and Tamerlane, the site is of great archeological interest.

The Persian government has granted permission for the excavations, which will be in charge of Dr. Erich F. Schmidt, who has been working in Persia for the University of Pennsylvania during the last two years, it was announced at the museum here today.

Court Pulls Shade on N. Y. Lights

Newport, R. I., Sept. 30—William Sant must keep away from the bright lights of New York or go to Federal prison, according to the terms of probation meted out by Judge McLellan in Federal court at Boston.

Sant was found guilty of transporting a stolen automobile from Boston to New York. Sentence was suspended with the proviso that Sant keep away from New York.

United Missionary Conference Opens

The Boston United Missionary conference opens tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 when Dr. Stanley E. Jones of India addresses a mass meeting in Old South Church, Copley sq. At the same hour a young people's rally will begin in the Church of the Covenant, Berkeley and Newbury sts. The speakers will be Dr. Herman Chen-en Liu president of Shanghai University China, and Miss Lillian Picken evangelist and social worker of India.

Big Floor Show to Open Up Rathskeller

Headed by Adrian O'Brien and Alice O'Leary, a big floor show will usher in the new season in the Rathskeller of the American House. The Rathskeller opens this year with a 10 act floor show, featuring Lee Hannon and his 14 musical bell hops. Al Taylor, master of ceremonies, visiting stage and radio stars.

The entire Rathskeller has been redecorated and remodelled, allowing for the largest night club dance floor in the city.

50 Turtles "Speed" in N. D. Fair Derby

Washburn, N. D., Sept. 30—The annual McLean County turtle derby was proclaimed a success but there were lamentations that times aren't what they used to be.

For two weeks, old and young searched for promising racers. They found creeks that used to flow didn't exist due to lack of rain. The turtles were gone too. The 50 speeders were turned lose in the center of a ring. Number 281 won.

"Two Gun's" Lawyer Hints Client Has New Job

James H. "Two-Gun" Baker, center of police, political and domestic strife in Quincy, may never return to his duties as a policeman there, his Boston attorney indicated today.

The hint that Baker had another job was dropped by Atty. Saul R. Tucker, after Tucker had been refused in no uncertain terms when he made a demand for Baker's clothing and other belongings from Mrs. Baker, who is living with her six children in Sachem st., Wollaston.

"He knows where his home is and he can come and get them if he wants," was the gist of Mrs. Baker's ultimatum.

The demand followed a sort of truce, in which Baker's leave of absence was left uninterrupted by the agreement with Mayor Charles A. Ross that Baker sends his wife $20 every week while on leave.

Much conjecture was apparent over Baker's "new job," some believing he is to be the bodyguard of a wealthy man and others leaning to the prospects of a police chief's post in a Cape Cod town.

It's Weather, Whether or Not Today

Out of a welter of heaped-up furniture and equipment hastily moved into the latest weather bureau headquarters, Meteorologist George A. Loveland issued his first forecast from the new federal building today.

The moving took place yesterday and during the night, with the result that desks, tables and apparatus brought over from old Young's Hotel were piled up indiscriminately in the new quarters on the 19th floor.

Despite the unsettled condition, Forecaster Loveland did quite well for Boston and vicinity in the matter of weather for the week-end.

FINELLI'S FOES END DEFENSE

Final arguments will be made Monday before Judge Walter L. Collins and a jury in Middlesex Superior Court in the cases of two men on trial for beating Atty. John Finelli, of Watertown, in a vacant house there last June.

The men on trial are David R. Cornell, 26, charged with armed assault with intent to murder, and Pasquale Citrone, 45, Newton contractor, accused of being accessory to the assault.

The government alleges Citrone hired Cornell to beat Finelli and that bad blood existed between the two due to Finelli's activities as trustee of the contractor's bankrupt estate.

Citrone rested his case without putting in any defense but took the stand for Cornell, who had testified Citrone had nothing to do with the assault. Cornell claimed the idea was born in his mind during a drinking bout with a stranger, who aided him in the attack.

Citrone testified he had met Cornell through his daughter and had given him work at times. He denied any knowledge of the assault but admitted he had had trouble with Finelli.

MAYBERRY CASE BEFORE JUDGE

Legal circles await with interest today the decision in the disbarment proceedings against Atty. Lowell A. Mayberry, heard in Supreme court before Justice Henry T. Lummus.

And they had no inkling of when a verdict may be rendered, Justice Lummus having taken the case under advisement and without comment.

Because of testimony that would involve the purity of the jury system and testimony that bordered on courthouse gossip concerning jurors, the decision is expected to be unusual.

Charges of "jury fixing" were cited in seven cases in which Atty. Mayberry was interviewed as counsel. His attorney at the hearing claimed in his summation that the charges were "framed."

WALTHAM'S NRA PARADE IS SET

Waltham's big NRA parade will swing up the street Monday night at 7, it was announced today. More than 30 decorated floats and a dozen bands already have been assigned places in the line of march. White NRA overseas caps and red fire have been provided.

In addition to the decorated floats to be entered by various factories and stores, organizations such as the Waltham Women's Club, the Margaret Brent Civic Guild, the American Legion Auxiliary, the Girl Scouts, the Waltham Mothers' Club and others will be represented by floats.

Poisoning Fatal to Nun

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, Sept. 30 (US)—One nun died here and 141 others are seriously ill of ptomaine poisoning in the Rosary convent of the Dominican Order.

POLICE TO WIELD AXE ON CLUBS TONIGHT

dress that has not yet been determined, police said.

A move for revocation of the Broadway Athletic Club charter was also revealed, but the action was held up until it could be determined what address was given when the charter first was granted. The club recently moved from the Exchange building to Hanover st., according to police.

DEFIANCE ROUSES KING

With today's police plans, every liquor resort will be the scenes of apprehension during the Saturday night activities tonight, according to forecast.

Countless rebuffs and not a few instances of open defiance have aroused the ire of the new superintendent. They have interfered in no little degree to his dream of closing all suspected places, notwithstanding the approach of prohibition repeal.

Always with the qualification "if it is possible to obtain evidence," King ordered his special squad of "untouchables" to clear the city and make no hesitation about calling in as much more help as they think they require.

This squad is composed of Sergts. John McFarland, confidential aide to King when he was deputy superintendent; Joseph F. Condon, former liquor and vice raider in the Back Bay; Special Officers Fred Hart, John Butler and others.

GIRLS IN SPEAKEASY

It was this squad that swung axes and sledge hammers to batter down doors of the Lancaster Club, Newbury st., Back Bay, where the school girls were found as the only customers.

The doors were taken by police for the invocation of the law that requires owners of such establishments to pay for any labor that might be involved or trucking that is required for the seizure of doors.

In the drive against pools six men faced South Boston court today as the result of a raid in a Broadway store in which police said they seized 3000 slips and answered the phone calls for an hour to obtain more evidence.

Trapped in the store by Lieut. Francis M. Tiernan and his raiders were the six who gave their names as Joseph Nore, 30, of Tudor st.; John Masto, 29, of P st.; Francis Crowley, 30, of West Broadway; Robert Leary, 41, of West Third st.; Thomas Kelley, 33, of East Second st., all of South Boston, and Joseph Cernio, 28, of Harrison ave., South End.

Lucky Sneeze Saves Roll and Jewelry

Akron, O., Sept. 30—J. M. Doran had his handkerchief poised ready for a sneeze, just as five youths rushed into his cigar store and held up the place.

"Dont move a finger," they told Doran and six others.

Watching his chance, Doran slipped an envelope containing $30 from his breast pocket into the handkerchief. Then, pretending to wipe the perspiration from his brow, he slipped a valuable ring from his finger. The robbers got several hundred dollars worth of loot, but they didnt get the $200 or the ring. And Doran didn't sneeze.

1500 Greet Hoover at Missouri Farm

Maryville, Mo., Sept. 30—Former President Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Hoover were greeted by approximately 1500 persons when they arrived at their 80-acre farm near Graham, Mo., to inspect it for the first time.

"I lent a friend $10,000 in 1900," said Mr. Hoover. "He deeded to me this farm. It has never paid any dividends and I took it over only five years ago when my friend's mother died."

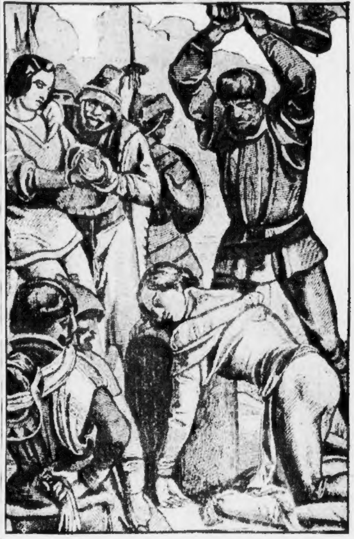
Thousand a Year for Life
And Reading Matter Even More Interesting Than the $1000

Copyright, 1933, N. Y. Evening Journal, Inc., Registered U. S. Patent Office



CHOPPING HEADS IN MEDIAEVAL GERMANY

The American Weekly, a Sunday magazine published with the Boston Sunday Advertiser and all Hearst Sunday newspapers, will give to some fortunate reader an income of $1000 a year for life, and to another, not quite so fortunate reader, an income of $500 a year for life. You will see the details in the Boston Sunday Advertiser tomorrow, and learn that one "good slogan," in case you live sixty years longer, might be worth $60,000 to you.

Even more interesting than mere money are the two pictures published here illustrating an article in the American Weekly dealing with the German Nazis' revival of mediaeval punishment.

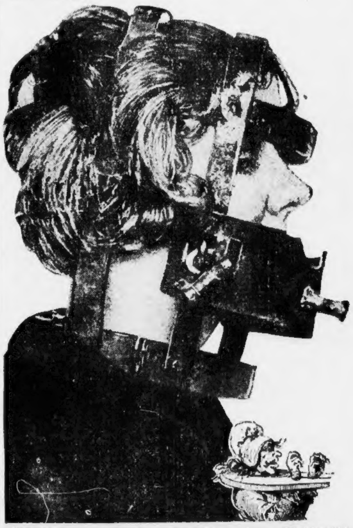
Germans today, men and women, are beheaded as punishment. Only the Germany of today dresses the headsmen in "full evening dress," with "open front shirt," and the rest of it, quite ceremoniously. Imagine your embarrassment with a man dressed in a "swallow-tail" coat standing over you with an axe.

The lower picture, showing a punishment mask, reproduces an ancient picture of punishment for women that gossiped or slandered. The victim could not talk, eat or drink until the mask was removed.



ANCIENT PUNISHMENT FOR WOMEN SCOLDS AND GOSSIPS

Modern Nazi Germany is inflicting somewhat similar punishments on "Nordic" German women accused of "being in love with young Jews." German girls thus accused have been paraded through the streets, with their long hair cut off and fastened to an insulting placard attached to the breast.

It is reasonable to assume that the revival of this kind of thing among the serious and highly educated and civilized Germans by young Mr. Hitler from Austria will not long endure.

These pictures, and others like them in the American Weekly, help to explain the fact that that publication, included in all the Hearst Sunday newspapers every Sunday, has by far the BIGGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PERIODICAL IN THE WORLD.

The Keyhole on the News

Too Early

Col. Swan made the trip from Gloucester to the World's Fair aboard the Gertrude Thebaud and was surprised—inasmuch as the ship is famous and the trip was well publicized—when very few people showed up at the stopping points en route.

Nearing Chicago the Colonel, at the last stop, saw a fellow whittling idly on a pier. He barely looked up when the Thebaud warped in to be made fast. He kept right on with his whittling.

"Home gettin' dressed," said the sailorman, still whittling, "an' they might jest as well save their selfes th' trouble. You people come along here four hours ahead o' time and expect a welcome. Well, look at it! I'm the hull welcome."

And the whittling proceeded.

Welcome Everywhere

Prof. Harrison, of the M. I. T. faculty, not only believes in hoodoos but has a sound reason for doing so. He has met the famous Prof. Pauli, of Berlin, who is supposed to have the most abysmal luck imaginable and who is somewhat like "Typhoid Mary" in the field of misfortune.

The arrival of Prof. Pauli at a laboratory is usually signalized by the dropping of instruments or the cracking of equipment. It's been so for years.

Once when enroute to Copenhagen on a mission of importance a group of professors, including Einstein, were disturbed when the train stopped abruptly. Prof. Pauli had come aboard at a small station and the engineer could not get the train started again. He was induced to take a bus and the moment he departed the train started and went along undisturbed for ten miles. Then it stopped again. It had been hailed by Prof. Pauli, because the bus had broken down. Again the engineer could not start the train and all the professors missed the convention.

"Where?" asked an old codger, of Bette's father," did Elizabeth meet the man she married?" He held his hand to his ear ear to get a full report.

"On the tennis courts," said Mr. Davis.

"Well," said the old fellow, "people say plenty against those lawyers—they're p-u-r-t-y slick, y'know. But if she keeps her eyes peeled it may turn out all right, after all."

BIDS AND PROPOSALS

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.—Fed. Aid Project No. NRM 241-A.—Department of Public Works.—Notice to Contractors.—Sealed proposals for constructing a section of highway in the Cities of (East) Boston and Revere, to consist of about 2300 feet of reinforced concrete surfacing about 9500 feet of bituminous macadam surfacing, about 600 feet of sheet asphalt surfacing, including the substructures for four steel stringer bridges will be received by the Department of Public Works, at its office, 100 Nashua Street, Boston, Mass., until 12 o'clock noon, of Tuesday, October 17, 1933, and at that place and time will be publicly opened and read.

Plans may be seen and forms of specifications and contract may be obtained at the office of said Department. A pamphlet containing the Itemized Proposal with Special Provisions may be obtained on receipt of a deposit of $2.00, which amount will be returned if the person taking the pamphlet makes a bid for the work on the form provided in said pamphlet, or returns the pamphlet at or before the time of the opening of the bids.

Consideration should be given to the fact that this is a National Recovery Highway Project. The attention of bidders is directed to the Special Provisions covering subletting or assigning the contract and to the use of Domestic Materials.

Carpenters 1.20; Structural Iron Workers 1.20; Reinforcing Steel Setters .75; Riggers .75; Tagmen .75; Watchmen .45; Shovel Engineers 1.00; Crane Engineers 1.00; Hoisting Engineers 1.00; Roller Engineers .60; Pump Operators .75; Compressor Operators .60; Tractor Operators .70; Truck Drivers .55; Pavement Finish Machine Operators .60; Firemen .65; Mechanics .75; Blacksmiths .75; Blacksmith Helpers .55; Stone Masons 1.20; Brick Masons 1.20; Pavers 1.10; Bulldozer Operator .70; Drill Operator .60; Form Setters .55; Grader Operator .70; Oiler .60; Screen Operator .60; Stone Spreaders .60; Unskilled Laborers .50.

The name and address of the local registration office of the National Reemployment Service from which employee lists for this contract shall be obtained (as required in Paragraphs I and IV of the Special Provisions) will be supplied later but will be in the general locality of the work.

No bid will be received unless accompanied by a surety bond accepted and approved by the Department or by a certified check for the amount of $17000, payable to the Department of Public Works.

The check or bond must not be included in the sealed envelope with the proposal but must be delivered to the Financial Secretary of the Department who will give a proper voucher for the deposit.

By FRANK E. LYMAN,
Commissioner of Public Works.
Boston, Mass., September 30, 1933.

6 Reasons Why You Should Inspect Nabnasset Lake Shores Today

1. Hard Surface Roads to Property.
2. The entire shore is sandy, which is an unusual feature at fresh water resorts.
3. With each lot you are entitled to a free membership in a club house, tennis and basketball courts.
4. The lake is famous for its good fishing and is a mecca for the duck hunter in the fall.
5. Every lot is located on a well-graded road and the majority are covered with large Pine and Maple trees.
6. Property consists of 227 acres with 2 miles of shore frontage and two islands.

REACH OUT YOUR HAND AND GRASP THIS OPPORTUNITY!

Profits and Wages
The Real Meaning of NRA

Frederic B. Stevens, in his Boston speech, excoriated the employers whose insatiable greed for profits has compelled their employes to work for starvation wages.

Mr. Stevens is the commander of the highest Masonic body in the United States. This is what he said:

"It is indeed a sad commentary on the morals of our boasted civilization when we are compelled to admit that the insatiable greed of some employers took advantage of a situation and compelled men and women to work for starvation wages until the strong arm of a national law intervened to compel the adoption of a system of common decency.

"Instead of calling such a government Socialistic, we had better call it humanistic and be justly appreciative of a government which lends a helping hand when such helping hand is sorely needed. Out of the deluge I see a light in the East and the dawn of a better day."

You will notice that his thoughts and philosophy were carefully spoken by a good man who recognizes his responsibility as the head of a very influential and widespread fraternity.

Thus you hear the benign purposes of the NRA forcefully praised by the spokesman of the same organization which berated intolerance and bigotry as it existed in the heyday of that defunct and discredited outfit, the Ku Klux Klan.

What IS the purpose of the NRA, which Mr. Stevens commended?

Its purpose is to recognize and to put into practice the old injunction that every laborer is worthy of his hire.

Its purpose is to improve the wages, the working standards and the living conditions of the American workers with humane concern for their conditions and with the very practical belief that their improvement is essential to the economic recovery of the Nation and the general prosperity for all.

Mr. Stevens' progressive thoughts could well have been uttered in Boston, or in Fall River, New Bedford, Lawrence, Lowell or in any of the other Bay State cities where the notorious sweatshops imposed their starvation wages upon the women and girls in violation of decency and humanity and in violation of all the rules for economic revival of the country.

These sweatshops "took advantage of a situation," in the words of Mr. Stevens. They hired abandoned mill properties for a song. They hired workers out of the desolate labor market and paid them a pittance that disgraced the name of wage. They put their sweatshop products into competition with the goods of decent employers who were willing to pay their women and girls a living and saving wage. They hung like a millstone around the neck of the depression, forcing it deeper into American life. Nor were the sweatshops alone in the forcing of degrading wages upon the workers.

These conditions had to be changed if the country was to fight its way out of the depression and its people be happy and contented again. We have made the start, but it takes an occasional reminder by an outspoken and thoughtful man like Mr. Stevens to keep us moving in the right direction to better times.

Looking at Candidates
Joint Meetings Fine Idea

The Young Democrats of Boston and the candidates for Mayor who appeared before them are both to be congratulated for the fine meeting in Faneuil Hall.

We are now in an important crisis in the life of the Nation and of the city.

We are striving co-operatively to conquer the economic depression which has burdened all our people more than three years and we are approaching the selection of the Chief Executive of the largest and most formidable municipality of the Northeast.

Efficient government management, particularly of the large cities, is utterly necessary to complete economic recovery. The time was never more appropriate for frank and capable discussion of issues.

A substantial audience was attracted to Faneuil Hall. The thoughtful people of Boston ARE INTERESTED in the choice of a Mayor who will preside over a city of 800,000 people and which expends $60,000,000 annually for its current expenses.

They accepted the opportunity to observe the candidates for Mayor, to hear their policies expressed and to assess their ability for leadership.

In short, the meeting took on the appearance of the joint debate which was for generations the orthodox form of campaigning for public office in this country. It was the joint debate that acquainted the country with the talents of Abraham Lincoln and saved the Union from dissolution.

Now that such a fine beginning has been made, we would like to see more of these sessions in which the candidates may appear upon the same platform in every section of the city.

The campaign for Mayor will be elevated from the depths into which it has at times descended in the past. The people will become more fully acquainted with the affairs of their city. They will become familiar with the gentlemen who aspire to the Mayoralty. It should be good for all

Barker for a Side Show

I was at the Fair and I
All alone and on the sly,
Lured by pleasure's voice of tin,
Paid a quarter to go in
Where some dancing woman gay
Had her charms upon display.
Tempted by a barker's cry,
I went in a thrill to buy.

Wriggling, twisting, squirming dame,
I would not your act defame.
All I know is, right or wrong,
'Twas the barker lured the throng;
'Twas the lusty voice and loud
That attracted such a crowd;
'Twas his shouting and his din

Wriggling, twisting, squirming dame,
Wiser from your dance I came.
Wiser in the sense that I Learned that pleasure's hue and cry
Often is a false appeal,
Planned to tempt, but seldom real.
Almost I this truth had lost;

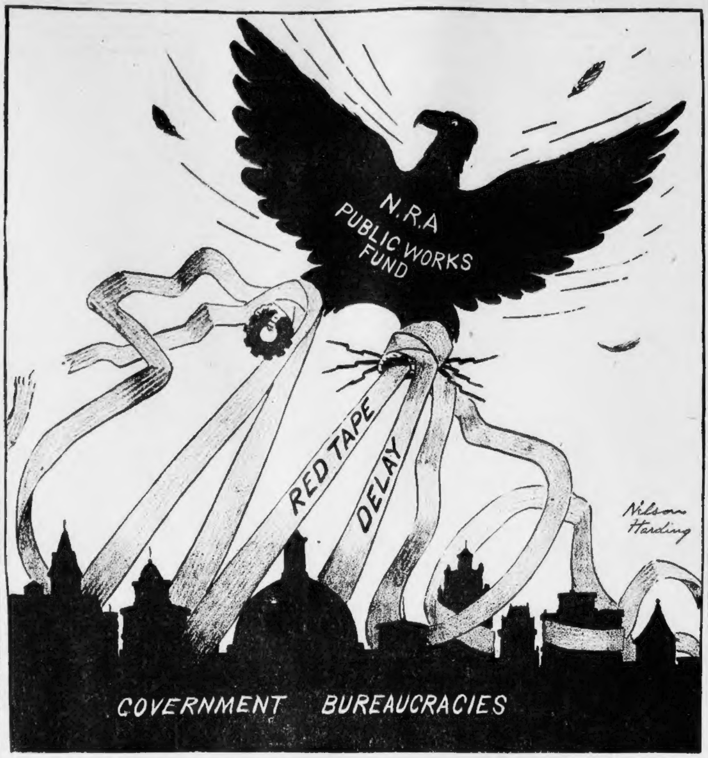
Break Loose!

By Nelson Harding



The eagle beats its widespread wings
And yet is not in flight.
Perhaps the picture can explain
Its present awkward plight.

A greater effort must be made
If we would soon escape
And break the long detaining strands
Of that entangling tape.

Adirondack Trail

TICONDEROGA, N. Y., Sept. 30—Ticonderoga, on a winding, well-watered Adirondack trail, was once strewn with trading posts, forts and pioneer cabins. At the head of beautiful Lake George and within a haloo of Lake Champlain, Ft. Ticonderoga is a land mark in the birth of the nation.

O. O. McIntyre

The Adirondacks are especially glowering with rusty foliage this time of year. Smoke hangs low. All the way as we dizzily climbed the peaks Lake George lay blue and unrippled for its 30 mile length. So peaceful. Odd that Indian war cries and the rattle of musketry once echoed around it!

Many mansions on the costal estuaries now bear "For Sale" signs. For this region was a get-away for Wall Street plungers. During summer youthful campers hike the trail. But the only hiker we saw was a Zim's "Weary Willie," even to a bandanaed bundle on a shoulder stick—the first tramp in years!

An aural buzz was noticeable as we continued to ascend. Harry Silvey peered from one plateau into the abyss and murmured: "Without them mountings, there would be no valleys!" And went back to his cat-nap. Showing how profoundly pedantic this pilgrimage has become.

* * *

Ticonderoga Fort's crumbled ramparts still bristle with decaying cannon. One turn in the road reveals a monument to memory of 600 out of 1000 of the Black Watch who died here. There valor inspired a favorite Robert Louis Stevenson poem, "Ticonderoga." Hallowed ground indeed. Even rebuilt, the fort is a puny defense in modern warfare. One airplane, on bomb—and it would be wiped out. I wondered how futile our present defense would seem 200 years from now. It's a paragraph Mr. Brisbane could make hum.

* * *

The French erected the fort in 1755, marking the very southern outpost of the nation. Three years later it was attacked by Abercrombie and the British army of 15,000. In 1759 the British attacked it again and the French evacuated. All a prelude to the introduction of one of my favorite characters in history—Ethan Allen. Without him we might be huzzahing King George.

* * *

It was Allen and his one-gallused clod-hoppers, known as the Green Mountain boys, who demanded surrender of the fort. His ultimatum, remindful of lusty melodrama that used to thrill at Pike's Opera House in Cincinnati, was: "Surrender in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental congress!" And, By Cracky, those British skedaddled!

* * *

The gloomiest village we came across is Whitehall, N. Y. Substantially built, neatly kept and pleasantly located, we saw only three people in its whole length. Maybe it was milking time or the town was just being exclusive. Anyway, a lot of fancy porch sitting was going to waste. But I did see an old-time strawberry roan mare with flax mane and tail, in a pasture. That's something!

* * *

We drove to Albany this evening to look at the state capitol, and browse. Out a mile or so is the Governor's mansion. Albany's main section is hilly, and newsboys cry editions lustily—like Los Angeles. Albany, and I scarcely know why, has a greater dignity than most capitals. In repose, it is village-like but when it becomes active it takes on a smart metropolitan air. I even saw a Warner Baxter sort of a fellow with a monocle stroll out a hotel.

* * *

For days all of us have been thirsting for a roadside glass of cool buttermilk. Buttermilk loses its cellar crockiness in the city. It becomes insipid like cafeteria milk. But under the open sky, with tiny clots of yellow blobbing the surface, it's a libation for gods. We had two glasses each near Albany.

* * *

So far no trouble about hospitality for dogs. Yet they bark at everyone who comes to the door save for a single idiosyncracy. They do not bark at a waiter arriving with food. Indeed you would think they were welcoming a favorite rich uncle long lost in the Klondyke or something.

Listen, World!
By Elsie Robinson

Let Life Grow Over Scar

TWO FRANTIC women wrote to me recently.

One woman lost her only daughter, two years ago. She says she has "never been able to get over it." She stopped living the day her daughter died and the months since have been filled with meaningless motions. One by one she has let her old friends and her old interests drop. Their going caused no pain. She is conscious only of one thing—the awful wound in her heart. That wound is as open today as it was two years ago.

Elsie Robinson

"My sister says that is wrong," she writes. "She says I ought to try and get over Ellen's death. But she has never lost anyone and she doesn't know. I would feel like a traitor if I could get over my sorrow. I miss her just as much now as I did the first day."

The other woman is also tortured by memory, but hers is not grief over a lost child. She grieves for a sin she once did. It happened many years ago, when she was a young girl. Few knew of it at the time; no one, save the woman, herself, remembers it now. She has been married seventeen years. She is the wife of a fine man; the mother of four lovely children.

"But I can't honestly say I have ever been happy, Elsie," she wails. "The thought of what I did has hung over me like a shadow all these years. I feel as if I was cheating, taking all this love and respect. Lots of times I decide to tell my family all about it. It seems as if it would relieve me. Maybe then I could think of something else."

Two women with open wounds in their hearts—two lives that aren't going on—

I'm thinking of that old oak we cut down last week. We're cleaning ground for an apple orchard, half a mile from camp. Fine soil, but covered with manzanita, chaparrel and occasional larger trees. A big white oak topped them all—a splendid old giant, but already past its prime, so we decided to cut it. The blade flew—chop up—chop down—each stroke cleaving true and clean. Suddenly, as we drew close to the heart, something changed. There, hidden in the secret depths of the old tree was an iron spike.

Dozens of years ago, in its hot, eager youth that spike had been driven into the heart of the tree. It must have been almost a mortal blow for it made a vicious scar. But the tree lived on.

The tree lived on. It could not remove the spike. It could not erase the scar. That it would have to carry in its heart for all its days. BUT IT GREW IN SPITE OF THE SPIKE. IT GREW AROUND AND FINALLY OVER THE SCAR. And it became a giant and fulfilled its mission gloriously—though the spike still lay in its heart.

That is Life's way with trees. It flows upon its way in spite of spikes, it builds in spite of scars. BUILDING is the really important thing to life.

That is Life's way with trees. It is also Life's way with humans—if they will let Life have her way.

Life will build on in spite of the wound in our hearts if we are brave and wise enough to let her. She will build on and bring us into flooding harvest again if we will permit the covering of our scars.

We, ourselves, thwart Life's purpose—refuse to be healed. We find a sick satisfaction in the contemplation of our own hurt. We hold our little pain more important than Life's vast programme.

LET LIFE GROW OVER THE SCAR.

THE BIG RAILROAD executives of the country are reported to be grumbling over the pay cuts they have been compelled to take, and we hear there have been a few murmurs among the brakemen, too.

THE NATIONAL Screw Thread Commission, established by Mr. Hoover, has been abolished, as it was found utterly impossible to standardize all the nuts now in Washington.

MISS AMELIA EARHART strongly objects to the code for wives on the ground that it makes no provision for allowing the women one day off a week for flying, but our experience leads us to fear that the ladies will not be satisfied with only one day off a week for flying around.

Government Is Well Armed on Crime
By James T. Williams, Jr.

Another armed and desperate gangster has just been apprehended as a result of the activities of the Department of Justice's division of investigation, of which Edgar Hoover is the able director.

This division investigates offenses against federal laws. It collects evidence in cases in which the federal government is or may be a party.

Federal crimes throughout the United States Hawaii and Alaska come within the investigative jurisdiction of Director Hoover and his well trained and highly competent staff.

Offices of this division are maintained in 22 cities throughout the United States, and its activities are not limited by the boundary lines of any state.

There is a special agent in charge of each of these offices. The number of investigators assigned to each office varies with the amount of work arising within the region in which the office is maintained.

These special agents co-operate with the police agencies of the several states and municipalities in their warfare against violators of the law.

MEN SELECTED CAREFULLY

Most careful consideration is given by director Hoover to the selection of his investigators. He appoints as special agents only duly qualified graduates of recognized law schools. After their appointment these special agents are given intensive training at Washington. Their advancement in the service depends upon the aptitude they show for their work. Those who make the best records are given charge of the field offices of the division.

It is the work of these carefully selected and well trained members of Director Hoover's staff that is so constantly commended in the highest terms by the courts, prosecuting officers, and in general by the law enforcement officials of the federal government.

That this commendation is well deserved is evident from the fact that convictions have been secured in 95.51 per cent of all cases investigated by the division which were brought to trial.

The record shows that during the fiscal year 1933, 3,896 convictions—an average of 10 convictions for each day of the year—were obtained in cases investigated by the division, headed by Mr. Hoover.

The sentences imposed totaled over 4764 years, and included seven life sentences. This did not include probationary sentences, which totaled 2,659 years, or suspended sentences of 1149 years.

Fines imposed in these cases totaled $32,177, and the total value of recoveries amounted to $6,392,332.

One of the most important subdivisions of the division of investigation is the identification unit, which was established in 1924 as a clearing house of identification data.

This unit contains the largest and most complete collection of criminal fingerprint records to be found anywhere in the world today. The number of these records on file on the first of this month was 3,870,910. This number is increasing at the rate of more than 2200 fingerprint cards each day. Over 45 per cent of all the fingerprints received are of persons identified as having prior criminal records.

To assist other law enforcement agencies throughout the country to combat crime and criminals, the division of investigation publishes a monthly bulletin under the title "Fugitives Wanted by the Police." Listed in this bulletin are "the names, aliases, descriptions and fingerprint classifications of wanted fugitives, together with the names and addresses of law enforcement officials and agencies to be notified when the fugitives are located."

NEED OF CO-OPERATION

No other nation in the world maintains a criminal investigating agency as extensive in its jurisdiction, as well organized, well manned and well directed as the federal government possesses today in the Department of Justice's division of investigation.

What is needed to make the common warfare against crime and criminals in this country more effective is closer co-operation between the several states in their support of this federal agency. Every governor should agree to honor the requisition of every other governor in cases where a major crime is alleged. Every state should maintain an efficient state constabularly to work with the federal division of investigation in the running down of crime and the rounding up of criminals.

Human Side of the News
George M. Cohan, Most Interesting One-Man Show—Mrs. Pat Campbell, Mellowed by Years
By Edwin C. Hill

Good men, like good wine, improve in flavor with the passing years. George M. Cohan, well past his 55th birthday, scores still another triumph as America's best-loved entertainer. For many years a star behind the footlights, then a somewhat timid explorer of motion picture celebrity, and finally a smashing success as a radio speaker and singer, George Michael Cohan stands today as just about the most attractive and interesting one-man show in the whole diversified field of amusement.

About a year ago Mr. Cohan was seated under a tree and reading a book in far off Hollywood. Bored numb with motion pictures and picture folk, he was unable to comprehend, with his keen, business-like mind, the mental processes of people who were willing to pay him a fortune week after week, and yet could find little or nothing for him to do. And so he came back to New York and Broadway, and presently we will find him on the stage once more in a play by Eugene O'Neil.

Perhaps George Cohan would not be so appealing and attractive as a performer of stage, screen and air if he were not so thoroughly real and human as a man. Not in the recollection of this writer, at least, has a more authentic human being stripped before audiences or cast his peculiarly vibrant tones out upon the mysterious airways. Nor a man of bigger heart.

Money means very little to George Michael Cohan of the erstwhile Four Cohans. It is handy, chiefly, to give away. They say he has given away at least a million in his time, staking actors in trouble and almost anybody else who could make a dent in his easy sympathies.

This unobtrusive star of 55, born in Providence, R. I., on Independence Day in 1878, never saw a school room after he was eight years old. Yet he has written a hundred plays and twice as many songs, and never into play or song would he write an unclean line or a smutty situation. Because of this, or in spite of it, as some cynics have allowed, he is one of the richest men connected with the theater.

In spite of the fact that he has given large handedly for more than 25 years and has created—so his friends say—a private payroll of benevolence which costs him at least $50,000 a year, Mr. Cohan enjoys one of the soundest, best guarded fortunes of the American entertainment [illegible]

This is the George M. Cohan, gray of hair, pink of cheek, blue of eye and boyishly lithe of figure, who always greeted his Dad with a kiss smack on the lips, and whose first daily concern is to telephone to his mother. This writer doubts if there is any single masculine figure who has so firm a tail-hold upon that elusive will-o'-th'-wisp known as popularity.

* * *

The years have mellowed the last of the three goddesses of dramatic art, Mrs. Pat Campbell. The imperious lady is again on this side of the Atlantic, to instruct us in the art of beautiful speech. The nineties may have been a mauve decade, but not for the beautiful and brilliant lady who shared with those two immortals, Duse and Bernhardt, the plaudits of the world of yesteryear.

Daughter of John Campbell and Marie Romanini, she was left a young mother with two children when Patrick Campbell went off to Australia for his health and gold, and finally to South Africa to meet his death in the Boer War. Taking to the stage to earn a living, she made a tremendous success in Sir Arthur Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." It had a run of 365 performances, which was phenomenal for the nineties. Thereafter, she delighted England, the Continent and New York in the plays of Ibsen, Maeterlinck, Shaw and Barrie.

She infuriated Bernard Shaw by adding a last line to his "Pygmalion." The play ends with Prof. Higgins asking Eliza to buy him a pair of gloves. That was the curtain, as Shaw wrote the ending. There wasn't any more, and it was left to the audience to guess whether Eliza ever came back.

But, the irrepressible madcap, Mrs. Campbell, added a touch of her own. For the last words of the play she made Eliza reply to the professor's request for gloves the two words: "What size?" And she continued to close on that line, in spite of Shaw's angry protests. To Mrs. Pat, Shaw was a charming and engaging old dear who wrote foolish and ridiculous love letters but who could not be taken too seriously.

Back at the turn of the century she was a tall, graceful beauty, with dark, dreamy eyes and masses of black hair. She sat down for an afternoon of bridge with a New York society woman thirty years ago and won twenty-two thousand dollars. She was the first woman to smoke publicly in a New York hotel—this was in nineteen-seven—but the manager appeared in person and made her put it out.

She must smile to herself over that recollection, and other dimming pictures of the little old New York that was, as she sits with her Pekingese on her lap and looks out on the gigantic and roaring New York of today. But she tells the reporters that our girls are prettier than of yore, and that we are using better diction than in the old days.
